VOL XVII. NO. 80. TOLEDO, OHIO, MONDAY, JULY 25, 1892. LAST EDITION. TWO CENTS.

IN THE BEE TO-DAY

U. S. Department of Agriculture, Weather Bureau, Toledo, O., July 25, 1892.

The area of high pressure is central over the south Atlantic states, where it has been for the past 10 days.

There is a slight depression central over Nebraska, which will probably develop greater energy during the next 24 hours.

The position of the "high" and "low" areas of pressure are very favorable for a continuation of the hot weather, as the winds blow from a "high" area to a "low" and will cause the warm air from the southern portion of the country to flow northward, thereby causing warmer weather in the higher latitudes.

The temperature over the entire country east of the Rocky Mountains continues high, ranging from 70 to 85 degrees.

The highest temperature at this station yesterday was 96 degrees, and the thunder storm caused it to fall to 71 degrees in 20 minutes.

The rains during the past 24 hours have been local, and were most general around Lake Erie, caused by the storm which developed west of this station and moved rapidly eastward, extending as far east as Albany, N. Y. Winds during this storm attained from 40 to 70 miles per hour over Lake Erie.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity during the next 36 hours—Fair with possible thunder storms in afternoon, continued warm.

Chairman Frick Passed a Quiet Night,

And His Physicians Have Hopes of His Recovery.

No Signs Yet of the Fatal Blood Poisoning.

Latest News From the Locked-Out Men at Homestead and Everything Pertaining to the Strike.

Pittsburg, July 25.—Chairman Henry C. Frick of the Carnegie company did not come down to his office this morning as he jokingly assured his associates he would, when he was carried to the ambulance on Saturday night.

Nor is it probable that he will be seen at his desk for many months to come.

Reports from his residence this morning are to the effect that he passed a restful night, despite the closeness of the atmosphere. His extraordinary vitality was demonstrated yesterday, for although it was the hottest day Pittsburg has experienced in nearly ten years, his wounds gave him apparently little trouble while mentally he was bright and active.

His wounds were examined and dressed this morning, but there was not the faintest trace of blood poisoning or of any greater amount of inflammation than would be expected under the circumstances, and results of the examination were decidedly encouraging both to his surgeons and their patient.

After the examination, Mr. Frick asked for the morning papers and read with interest the accounts of the movements of the would-be assassin during Sunday and the interviews had with him.

As to the future of the sufferer, the surgeons say that it will not be possible for him to leave his bed even to walk about the room for a month or six weeks at the earliest.

It may be longer, but unless blood-poisoning or some other unlooked for development should supervene, they believe that he will improve rapidly and recover completely.

They are particularly concerned about the gashes on the under side of the leg, just above the knee, which were made by the assailant's knife. These almost severed the tendons and will occasion excruciating pains at intervals for many weeks to come.

Although the corps of surgeons take turns in attendance upon the wounded man, they include the most eminent skill in the city. It was decided last night to telegraph to an eminent New York specialist, asking him to come here at once to make a personal examination of the patient and advise concerning the treatment.

This morning, however, a reply was received that the specialist in question but whose name the surgon's will not give out, had gone to California, and thereupon it was decided to seek the aid of another noted physician, who, it is said, is at present in Washington.

The fact has been developed that on Saturday Mr. Frick received in his morning mail a letter which informed him that he would die before the next day. He passed it over to one of his associates with a joking remark, "I have but 24 hours to live."

Afterward he placed the missive in one of the pigeon holes in his desk. He referred ot the matter last night and to-day it is being investigated. It is not thought, however, to have any connection with Berkman's action.

The would-be assassin was quietly taken last night from Central station to the county jail, where he will remain until his trial in September. He was booked for felonious assault, the maximum penalty for which is but seven years, but other charges are to be added. He will remain in the jail until his trial in September.

A week from to-day he will be brought before Alderman Gripp, but this will be a formality, only to meet with the requirements of the law. He admitted to Warden McAlease that Berkman was not his right name, although he had borne it since his arrival in this country, but the closest questioning could not induce him to reveal the name by which he was known in his native land.

There is a good deal of mystery surrounding his recent movements which has yet to be penetrated.

At the time of his arrest he said that he had only come from New York the day before and had passed but one night in the city. Yet he has been identified by several men, who have seen him over and around the Carnegie building for a full week.

When first seen he was dressed like a tramp, and in the interval he must have received remittances to enable him to purchase the new suit of clothes and the revolver and the dirk. When arrested his entire resources was a 5-cent nickel. It is also said that he was seen at Homestead on Wednesday.

The local detectives are bending all their energies to discover whether or not the murderous Russian had any accomplices with him in this city and a vigorous search is being made for a man answering the description of Aaron Stamm, who was Berkman's boon companion in New York, and who is said to have disappeared from his usual haunts in that city.

When Berkman was dogging the entrance to the Duquesne club, where Mr. Frick lunched on Saturday, he was accompanied, so says several of the members, by a man whom they recollect as being attired in a suit of blue black cloth, but of whose facial characteristics they are unable to give any clear description.

It is thought that this fellow was an accomplice of the anarchist and waited at the bottom of the stairs with the intention of assisting him to escape, but took flight after the firing of the shots and the assembling of the crowd.

Berkman, however, appears to have been alone when he registered at the Merchants' hotel Friday night.

Superintendent of Police Omara left for New York last night for the purpose of conferring with Inspector Steers, regarding the possibility of the attack being the outgrowth of a conspiracy among that section of the anarchists, to which Berkman belonged.

He took with him several photographs of the prisoner, and also private papers found in his clothing, which are liable to prove of value in the investigation at the New York end.

Concerning the latter matter, however, the police authorities at this end refuse to say a word.

The action of Judge Magee this morning in admitting O'Donnell to bail was just what had been anticipated by those who heard the evidence adduced by the prosecution on Saturday.

The court reviewed this evidence at length, cited the law on the question, and announced that no case of murder in the first degree could be made out against the prisoner.

He hoped however, that when the donell was not an actual participant in the action, although there are grounds for the belief that he was a sympathizer, but not evidence enough to justify an indictment.

He hoped, however, that when defendant came to trial he would be able to show that he was in no wise guilty of participation in an affray that has resulted in the loss of so many lives. It was the court's imperative duty to admit the defendant to bail and that bail would be fixed at $10,000. The decision was received with a buzz of satisfaction from the crowded court room.

It was then announced that no evidence would be offered against Ross, Foy, and Allen, and bail in the same amount was fixed for each defendant. Bail was promptly given for all four prisoners and they were released.

Robert Sterling, the starved, shabbily dressed young fellow from Chicago, who was arrested on Second avenue last night while telling a small crowd that he had walked all the way from that city to kill Andrew Carnegie, will be sent to the workhouse to-day.

When taken to the station, he fainted for the want of food and afterwards admitted that he had eaten nothing since Friday. He says he has lived in Chicago for years, had worked on one of the cable lines and was in the Haymarket square during the riot. The pockets of his clothing were entirely empty save an ugly looking knife.

The orders signed by Mr. Frick, and posted at the Homestead works this morning, to the effect that men returning to work would be insured against removal, is regarded as the final peace offering of the firm to the strikers. In this connection, a representative of the firm makes an important statement.

WHERE IS THE FAULT ?

Englishmen Comment on the Frick Shooting.

London, July 25.—The attempted murder of Frick, the Carnegie manager, has aroused widespread attention among the working classes. The general expression is one of condemnation for violence as entirely unjustifiable in a country with popular government. Tom Mann, the labor leader, who is noted for the moderation of his views, is reported as saying:

"The British working classes will strongly condemn any attempt to assassination under the pretext of avenging the wrongs or assisting the cause of labor. Indeed, we working people of Great Britian have every reason to oppose anarchy, for we have the making of the laws ourselves, and will soon have the full control.

"Then, if capital treats labor unjustly we will pass laws that will make the capitalists the anarchists if they attempt to resist the laws. This is possible under our system, where parliament directly reflects the desires of the majority and has absolute power of legislation.

"I understand it is different in America, where it is said that certain provisions of the constitution would have to be repealed before the majority could rule. But this is for the people to change.

Mr. Mann added: "I am surprised to learn that the assassin in this case is a foreigner. All the famous assassins I have heard of in America, have been Americans, including the men who killed Presidents Lincoln and Garfield, the noted Fisk and the man who recently tried to kill Sage. The American record on the subject of assassinations is an awful one.

"Two presidents have been assassinated within little more than a quarter of a century, whereas it is more than four hundred years since the assassination of a ruler of France. Even despotic Russia has only seen two rulers assassinated in the present century, and Mexico, the neighbor of the United States, has not, I believe, seen a single ruler die by the assassin's hand.

"With such a record we Britons are not so much surprised as we would otherwise be at this latest instance of assassination. The only surprise is that in this instance a foreigner is the assasin."

The socialists who were interviewed about the crime generally united in condemning it as the act of a crazy anarchist. "The anarchists," said one of the leading socialists in London, "are the worst enemies of our sause. They are every now and then perpetrating some crime that brings down the wrath of the unthinking on socialism as if the socialists whose aim is to reform social conditions wholly through the agency of law, could have any sympathy with anarchy, which is opposed to all law."

This speaker said that men like Berkman were rabid animals and should be restrained as such. He had no doubt that the working people had nothing whatever to do with the crime.

London, July 25.—The Times says in regard to the shooting of Mr. Frick: "Berkman overstepped the line, but his crime differs in degree more than in kind from deeds of lawlessness and violence which not many strike leaders venture heartily to discourage and which some even openly advocate and defend.

"Mr. Carnegie's position is singular. The avowed champion of trades unions now finds himself in almost ruinous conflict with the representatives of his own views.

"He has probably by this time seen cause to modify his praise of unionism and the sweet reasonableness of its leaders. Or, are we to assume that the doctrine is true in Glasgow but not in the United States, or that it ceases to be applicable the moment Mr. Carnegie's interests are touched?"

BY THE THUMBS.

Severe Treatment to a Soldier Who Cheers Frick's Assassin.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 25.—For proposing three cheers for the fellow who shot H. C. Frick, Private W. L. Iams, of Company K, Tenth, of Waynesboro, was subjected to the most humilating punishment. When the news reached Camp Rowley on Saturday Private Iams gave vent to his feelings in this peculiar way, and was overheard by Lieutenant-Colonel Streator, who is commanding the Tenth.

Colonel Streator ordered the entire regiment to b edrawn up in line, and then he directed the man who had proposed three cheers for Bergman to advance to the front.

After a little delay, Iams stepped forward. W hen asked why he had been guilty of such a thing, he assumed an air of bravado and refused to answer. He was asked to apologize, but he refused to do so. He was then sent to the guard house and his case was reported to Major-General Snowden, who ordered a court-martial. The regimental officers held the hearing in the matter yesterday, and, as Iams admitted his guilt and refused to apologize, the court martial ordered that half the hair of his head and mustache be shaved off; that he be strung up by the thumbs for thirty minutes, be stripped of his uniform, dishonorably discharged and drummed out of camp. After having his head and mustache shaved, as directed, Iams was hanged up by the thumbs. For twenty minutes he endured this torture and then he lost consciousness. Two surgeons ordered that he be cut down at once, or he would soon be dead. He was cut down, and, after the doctors revived him, he was stripped of his uniform and given an old pair of overalls to wear. With only these and a shirt and an old hat, he was led out of the camp to Swissvale station to the time of the "rogue's march."

The entire Provisional Brigade witnessed the humiliating spectacle. Iams is 24 years old, and is a farmer. He is a member of one of the oldest families of Greene county, and is related to many of the most prominent people of that county. Opinion is divided as to the punishment, and many officers of the guard think it is too severe. Some of them say that hanging up by the thumbs is not permitted by the regulations, nor is the shaving of the head. As Gen. Snowden approved the finding of the court martial, they refuse to give their views publicity.

MRS. FRICK.

She Swooned When She Heard Her Husband Was Shot.

Pittsburg, July 25.—It was learned yesterday that Mrs. Frick had no knowledge of the assault upon her husband until yesterday morning. She has been ill for over a fortnight, having given birth to a son. So careful has her husband been to keep his troubles from her that she did not even know of the Homestead riots of the 6th inst. or of any of the sensational developments which followed.

When Mr. Frick was taken home she was given to understand that he had fallen and cut himself. To-day, by some accident, she got hold of a paper. At the sight of the headlines she fell into a swoon, and has had one fainting spell after another ever since. As she is of delicate constitution her condition is regarded as serious.

TO OUST MAGUIRE.

The Secretary Has Made Many Enemies.

Action Will be Taken at the St. Louis Meeting of Much Interest.

Philadelphia, July 25.—It is stated in labor circles that when the national convention of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners meet in St. Louis, on August 1, an attempt will be made to depose P. J. Maguire, secretary of that organization, and also vice-president of the American Federation of Labor.

A resolution was adopted by the local union, 306, recently, charging that the disasters which had befallen the order were due to the mismanagement of Meguire's office.

The district council has unanimously indorsed the resolution and it will be formally presented to the national convention of the Brotherhood in St. Louis by a delegate from this city. In the event of Maguire's re-election the convention will be asked to remove the secretary's office from Philadelphia.

Maguire has become unpopular with the trade, because since h's incumbency in the office at this place the cause of the carpenters has not prospered. Maguire ordered the carpenters strike in the spring of 1891, for eight hours and increased wages, and the strike proved to be a failure, disaster falling upon all participants in the movement. As the result the membership decreased to a few hundred.

MORE LABOR TROUBLE.

Rioting Again Reported in St. Louis.

St. Louis, July 25.—In consequence of a notice from the proprietors of the St. Louis smelting works to the employes that the company would not be responsible for any sickness or accident to employes as a result of their dangerous occupation, the workmen, about 80 in number, went on a strike Saturday.

The proprietors feared an assault on the works and invoked police protection.

Yesterday afternoon Capt. Keeble, with fifteen mounted policemen, went to Cheltenham, where the works are located, and ordered the strikers to disperse.

The police were met with a volley of stones and sticks.

Finally Captain Keebler directed the police to charge the strikers. This was done, and after the police wielded their clubs with vigor for five minutes the [illegible]

A force of police were left at the works last night but no trouble occurred.

AFFAIRS IN ENGLAND.

T. P. O'Connor Reviews the Situation.

A Guess at the Coming Cabinet.

The Policy of the Dominant Party as Seen by the Editor of the Sunday Sun.

London, July 25.—Mr. T. P. O'Connor, writing in his paper, the Sunday Sun, gives a forecast of the new administration.

Mr. O'Connor predicts that the cabinet will be composed as follows:

Premier and first lord of the treasury, William E. Gladstone.

Chancellor of the exchequer, Wm. Vernor Harcourt.

Chief secretary for Ireland, John Morley.

Secretary of state for foreign affairs, earl of Roseberry.

Secretary of state for war, Right Hon. Henry Campbell Bannerman.

Secretary of state for India, earl of Kimberly.

Lord lieutenant of Ireland, earl of Aberdeen.

Mr. O'Connor says: The office of lord chancellor has been offered to Baron Herschell, but it is reported that Baron Coleridge is ready to take the chancellorship, and thus enable Earl Russell to take the chief justiceship, when Baron Herschell will take a non-legal cabinet office. Sir George Trevelyn, Mr. O'Connor adds, will probably be appointed first lord of the admiralty; Right Hon. Anthony J. Munndella, president of the board of trade; Right Hon. Henry Fowler, secretary of state for home affairs; J. Rigby, attorney general or solicitor general; Henry Labouchere, postmaster general; Right Hon. Arthur W. Peel, speaker of the house of commons, and Herbert Gladstone, financial secretary of the treasury.

Right Hon. Edward Majoribanks will have the office of chief ministerial whip if he chooses to accept the position. He would be the most important man, next to the premier, owing to the narrow and heterogenous majority. Sydney Buxton and Richard Causton are sure of places, the latter probably being a baronet.

Mr. O'Connor says he does not believe Arnold Morely will be elevated to the peerage, put that he will probably take a higher place, and eventually become speaker.

Mr. O'Connor then discusses other minor and more uncertain positions.

Referring to the conservative assertion that the movement in favor of postponing the home rule bill is gaining strength amoun the radicals, O'Connor says he assumes the assertion is founded on articles in some of the liberal organs, and adds: "I cannot answer liberals and liberal journalists, but I can interpret the views of Irishmen, and the answer is that it will not do. Home rule must be the chief business of the new government. Any paltering postponement of home rule will compel the Irish party to oppose the government. The Irish party and Irish people have passed through one of the severest trials and have submitted to the parties as great sacrifices as any party or nation was ever called upon to make. When our leader was condemned by a trial raising personal rather than public issues the English liberals clearly indicated that continuance of his leadership would involve the loss of home rule, and the leader himself, by his senseless manifesto, change, the statement from one of apprehension into one of certainty. Then came the terrible struggle. The fight is over, but those on the inside know that the final victory was only obtained by unprecedented sacrifices and courage, and now some liberal journalists preach that Ireland and the Irish cause must take a back seat.

"The result of such an event to Ireland would be to send her back in the maelstrom from which she has been rescued nto by liberal hands, but by Irish hands. The Parnellites' cry was that the liberals would betray home rule, but it was soon seen that the cry was absurd in the face of Mr. Gladstone's high character, solemn pledges and courage, but they have since hinted that home rule will be hung up, and aosaorpf na L-sL b drraid vgkqjmfwypu as a proof of these suspicions we have precious proposals to postpone the home rule scheme. The whole thing is ridiculous, unwise and impracticable, and will lead to an early breach between the liberals and the Irish forces.

"I do not think that the new parliament will be short lived. It will last at least three years and not more than four. Numbers of the members of parliament havespent all theirtime and money to get into the house and I am convinced that if a vote is taken three-quarters and probably nine-tenths of the members will be against the proposal of an appeal to the country before two years.

"I do not think that Mr. Gladtsone has much fear from the Parnellites. They will join together to eject the coercionists and will then await Mr. Gladstone's home rule bill. It it is satisfactory they will join with the nationalists in supporting t. The realdanger believchim gvpcmfwyp it. If it is not satisfactory they will not be alone in vehemently opposing it. The real danger is from a slack attendance of the Irish members. I seriously recommend the consideration of the rule forbidding Irish members from pacing."

Mr. O'Connor concludes his article by repeating last week's suggestion that English bills be introduced in parliament in company with the home rule bill, but that the home rule measure be introduced first.

It is reported thatth e Post's suggestion that the government refuse to resign emanated from Lord Randolph Churchill.

DROWNED WHILE BOATING.

Two Prominent Detroit People Meet with Death.

Detroit, July 25.—Miss Carrie Roberts, a prominent young artist of this city, was out boating on the river yesterday afternoon with Alfred Wells, when they got in the way of a passing tow and were thrown into the water by their boat capsizing. Before aid could reach them they both sank. The bodies have not yet been recovered. Hundreds of people on shore witnessed the accident, but were unable to render assistance. Miss Roberts was well-known and had gained a local reputation as a fine artist.

WAR ON PINKERTONS.

New York Workingmen Take Up the Battle Cry.

Claimed that the Detectives Are Now Operating in That State Contrary to Law

New York, July 25.—The Herald says: A vigorous crusade against Pinkerton men, the initiative of which has been taken by the members of the New York Waiters' union, has just been started in this city.

The waiters claim that Pinkerton men are employed at several nearby summer resorts, notably at Manhattan Beach and Glen island; that this is a clear violation of the anti-Pinkerton law recently passed by the legislature of this state and therefore it behooves all organized workingmen to insist upon a rigid enforcement of the law.

According to the waiters the Pinkerton men not only act as policemen at these summer resorts, but also play the part of waiters and thus deprive many union waiters of an honest livelihood.

As a remedy for this state of things an appeal to Gov. Flower to enforce the anti-Pinkerton law and a consistent boycott of all summer resorts at which Pinkerton men are employed are proposed.

ROW AT A WEDDING.

Poles Get Excited and Commence Shooting.

Mahony City, Pa., July 25.—John Lipski, a young Pole, was married at 2 o'clock yesterday morning to Miss Mary Kolzovitch. Among the guests were Michael Felnski and John and Peter Kolzovitch, brothers of the bride.

All drank freely, and soon a dispute arose between two of the men as to which of the wedding gifts was the most valuable. They came to blows, and Lipski, who was just passing through the room with his bride, stepped forward to part the men. Then the row became general, and knives and revolvers were used. One of the shots struck the bride in the side and she fell to the floor, where she was trampled upon by the fighters.

The neighbors summoned the police, who surrounded the house and arrested all who had not in the meantime fled.

Mrs. Lipski and her two brothers were seriously wounded. Lipski was stabbed in many places, but none of his wounds are considered serious. Many others were cut, but were carried home by their friends before the arrival of the police. Twenty seven of the participants were arrested, several of whom bore ugly cuts.

CUT HIM TO DEATH.

John Hise Kills a Man at Logan.

The Two Men Were Enemies, and a Few Angry Words Brought About the Tragedy.

Logan, O., July 25.—John Hise stabbed Frank Chute Saturday evening about 6 o'clock, Chute dying in a few minutes. The only words spoken by Chute were "I'm done for. Go for a doctor." But before he could be carried to the doctor or a doctor could be brought to him, he bled to death.

About this time the train from Logan came along and Hise was put on the train and taken to Nelsonville and thence to the Hocking county jail at Logan, arriving in Logan about 10 o'clock. The chances are that if he had stayed in Carbon Hill he would have been lynched, as the citizens were very much worked up over the affair. He was taken away in about a half hour after committing the murder.

Chute leaves a wife and five small children. Hise is a man who was getting in trouble all the time, and was noted for disturbing and breaking up meetings. He has served one term in the pen for assisting prisoners out of the Hocking county jail by putting files into them.

Hise and John Dunfee were just coming out of the barnyard of A. H. Chute, the father of Frank S. Chute, to the road where Hise and young Chute met. They had some words and a quarrel soon arose from an old grudge.

Hise was sitting in the buggy and made a move as if he were going to get out, when young Chute struck him with his fist and knocked him back in his seat. Hise then kicked at Chute with both feet and rose up and reached for something in his pocket and jumped out of the cart.

Then Chute threw a brick or cinder at Hise which failed to hit him and started to run. Hise pursued him, knife in hand, 30 or 35 yards and caught him by one arm and held him while he stabbed him seven or eight times, three of the wounds being in and about the neck, and to such an extent and depth as to sever the large artery and veins under the collar bones.

Chute bled to death in a very few minutes. Hise has been resting easily in jail here all day and tries to play the insanity dodge very much already, but it is evident to all that he is simply playing it for effect. The people at Carbon Hill are very much excited and the village has been greatly exercised all day. If the people there could get hold of Hise they would undoubtedly lynch him.

COLLECTORS ON TRAINS.

Missouri Pacific Company to Try a New Deal.

Conductors Will Hereafter Have Nothing to Do With Taking Up Fares.

Kansas City, Mo., July 25.—Within 10 days every passenger train running over the Missouri Pacific system will carry a collector, and the functions of the conductor will not number among them that of attending to the revenue of the road. Owing to rumors of steals which have prevailed for months and the recent culmination of events, the officials of the line in question have decided to adopt most heroic measures and put collectors on the trains.

Since the discovery of this system of stealing by the joint work of the passenger agents and the conductors the local ticket sales on the Santa Fe, Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and other roads has doubled. The passenger agents who were caught conveying passengers to the inplicated conductors have not yet been discharged, but as soon as the detectives get all of their evidence together the axe will fall.

The other roads have not decided whether to adopt the Missouri Pacific's plan and put on collectors or hire an entire new force of conductors and passenger agents.

A COLORADO SENSATION.

Arrests of Men Charged With Robbing President Moffatt of $21,000.

Denver, Col., July 25.—A great sensation was created by the bringing into town of J. H. Cross and J. Daniels, who are charged as principal and accomplice in no less a robbery than that of David H. Moffatt, president of the First National bank, of this place.

It will be remembered that on March 28, 1889, a daring robber entered the First National bank in broad day light and at the point of a revolver forced Mr. Moffatt to give up $21,000.

Later the arrest of Cross and Daniels was made by Detective W. T. Sawyer, who claims that he has been working on the case for two years. Daniels confessed to Sawyer that Cross was the robber and that he (Daniels) has helped pass some of the money, which consisted of bills of large denomination.

Cross was arrested at Elbert, Col., sixty miles from Denver, where he has been living on a ranch for two years. Daniels has been in the state some time. Cross denies all knowledge of the robbery. None of the money was found in the possession of Cross.

A FAST OCEAN TRIP.

New York, July 25.—The Hamburg-American steamship Fuerst Bismarck, which left Southampton at 2:30 p. m. on July 16, made Fire Island in six days, 11 hours and 30 minutes. Allowing two hours to reach Sandy Hook she made the entire voyage of more than 3,100 miles in six days, 13 hours and 40 minutes.

This certainly breaks all records from Southampton if not from Queenstown. The record from that point would have been under six days at the speed the Fuerst Bismarck made on this trip. It was impossible to get the particulars of the voyage to-night.

APOPLEXY.

Upper Sandusky, O., July 25.—(Special)—Jacob Zimmerman, a prominent farmer of Salem township, died from a stroke of apoplexy Saturday. He was of mature years and one of the few remaining pioneers of this county.

GREAT TIME ON WATER

Preparing for the Regatta at Saratoga.

A Great Time for Oarsmen of the Country.

Ball Games in General and Sporting News of Interest to Bee Readers.

Saratoga, N. Y., July 25.—The twentieth annual gathering of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen has attracted over two thousand visitors to this city, and about a quarter of this number will participate in one or another of the various events which are booked for to-morrow and next day.

More than usual interest is manifested in the regatta this year owing to the fact that the entries comprise some of the best oarsmen in the country.

The senior light oared race will be the principle event, and will be contested by the New York Athletic Club, the Malta Boat Club, the Atalanta Boat Club, and many others.

The great popularity which amateur rowing has attained during the past few years, and of which the present gathering is an outcome, is due to the efforts of several men interested in amateur boating who met in New York City twenty years ago for the purpose of devising means to protect the sport from the influences of professionalism.

The object of the gathering, as stated in the call, was the adoption of a definition of an amateur oarsman, and the creation of an organization to include the whole country, to secure recognition and enforcement of the definition by amateur clubs.

The following year a larger and more general convention of rowing men was held at Philadelphia, and at this meeting the present organization was founded. There was great difficulty in selecting a definition of an amateur oarsman which should not savor of snobbishness, and which should yet be exclusive enough to save the sport from the injurious influences of professionalism.

The definition adopted and still in effect provides that no man can class himself as an amateur who has rowed, or otherwise competed, in a physical contest for money, or has followed an occupation involving the use of oars, such as fishing, or the running of a ferry.

This, it will be seen, lets in anyone who rows for pleasure, regardless of occupation, barring only the classes specified. A number of important local associations are now in existence, including the Northwestern, the Mississippi Valley, the Inter-State, the Middle States, the Long Island, and the Passaic River, all of which contribute to the success of the national races, but find advantage in local organization.

Among the western clubs which are represented in the entries are the Catlin, the Farragut, the Iriquois, and the Union Boat clubs of Chicago, the Detroit Boat club of Detroit, the Modoc Boat club of St. Louis, the Ottumwa Oarsmen of Ottumwa, Iowa, the Minnesota Boat-club of St. Paul, and the Garfield Boat club of Salt Lake City.

Most of the members are college graduates who took up rowing during their studies and, having matriculated, keep up their boating exercise as a means of promoting good physical condition, and for the social enjoyment incident to the annual gatherings of the local and national associations.

Paris, July 25.—The great event Saturday night was the billiard contest at the Folies Bergere before a crowd of 2,000 persons. In a balk line game of 300 points up between Ives and Feurnil, the latter receiving 80 points. Ives scored the runs in succession of 108 and 96 respectively, which called forth repeated cheers. This had the effect on Feurnil that Ives had anticipated, and the Frenchman played wildly, being unable to keep the balls together. The stakes, amounting to 1,820 francs, were paid over to Ives, who also had laid 400 francs on the result. The score stood: Ives, 300; average, 33 1-3; Feurnil, 145; average, 11.

At Vignaux's academy in the afternoon Schaefer and Gardner played a cushion game of 100 points, the latter receiving 20 points. After a very pretty contest Schaefer was declared the winner, the scores standing: Schaefer, 100; average, 6 1-4; Garnier, 81; average, 4.

In the evening Schaefer and Piot played at Vignaux's a balk line game of 300 points up, and Piot von. The score stood: Piot, 300; Schaefer, 192.

KILLED HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Ida Sadler Shoots the Man Who Should Protect Her.

St. Louis, July 25.—Mrs. Ida Sadler, living at No. 34 LaSalle street, shot and instantly killed her husband Marcus, at noon yesterday.

Sadler had been drinking, and returning home after an absence of three days, he had some words with his wife.

On removing his coat, his wife saw a photograph of a woman in his pocket. She demanded the picture and the name of the woman. Sadler refused to give either and his wife seized a revolver and threatened to kill him. Sadler attempted to get the revolver from his wife and in the scuffle the weapon was discharged, the ball entering Sadler's breast near his heart, killing him almost instantly. Mrs. Sadler claims the shooting was accidental.

Robbers Make a Big Haul in the East.

A Safe Riddled and Three Thousand Dollars in Money Taken.

Ashbury Park, N. J., July 25.—The works of the Electric Power company here were entered by burglars early this morning, the watchman assaulted, bound and gagged, and the safe blown open and robbed of its contents, some $3,000.

About 20 minutes to 3 o'clock this morning while the watchman was alone in the power house of the company three men suddenly sprang upon him and dealt him a murderous blow between the eyes with some blunt instrument, knocking him senseless.

When he returned to consciousness an hour and a half later he was lying in the back tool room covered with blood. His arms and feet were bound with rope and he was gagged.

He worked his arms loose and crawled to the front office where he found the safe had been blown open and the books and papers scattered all over the room. the conductors' money box, where late collections were dropped, was also broken open and its contents abstracted. Dickman, the watchman, managed to crawl to a neighbor's and assistance was summoned.

It is not known exactly how much money was in the safe, but it is thought to have been fully $3,000. Dickman's wounds are serious. There is no clue to the safe blowers.

MYSTERIOUS ASSASSIN.

Talk With the Man Who Tried to Kill Frick.

He is Sorry That He Failed in His Work.

Perfectly Willing to Die If He Only Knew That Chairman Frick Was Dead First.

Pittsburg, July 25.—When the Anarchist Berkman, who attempted to kill H. C. Frick was searched in the jail, two dynamite caps were found in his mouth, such as Lingg used to blow off his head when sentenced to death for complicity in the Haymarket massacre. When Bergman was seen by a reporter he said:

"Why should I talk to reporters? You are all the slaves of capitalists. What business is it of yours? If I say anything that you don't like, you will not print it. When you leave here you will write a long story about me, no matter if I don't say a word. I do not care to say anything."

The prisoner strode to the bars, his face lit up, and he said in good, pure German: "You'll understand me better and I'll talk to you if you don't ask me too much. I don't like to talk in English, because I am not always so sure of my grounds in that tongue."

Before the reporter could ask him a question he came close to the bars and asked eagerly: "Is he dead yet?"

"Mr. Frick is still alive," the reporter answered. "His wounds may not be mortal."

An expression of disappointment came into his face as he answered: "I'm very sorry: I thought he'd be dead now."

"What did you shoot him for?" he was asked.

"What did I shoot him for. Ha! ha! That's a nice question to ask. Do you know any person in this world who is the better or happier for his having lived. I can find you thousands whom he has made miserable. Out in Homestead people will soon be suffering the pangs of hunger. Whose fault is it? Mr. Frick's. Thousands of strong, healthy men are now idle because they cannot return to work without sacrificing their self-respect, and whose fault is it? Mr. Frick's. Six workingmen were buried here last week. Who killed them? Mr. Frick. Does such a man deserve to live? Of what good is he in the world? He is a dog and should die. I wanted to kill him and I am ready to die for it."

Berkman began to walk excitedly up and down his cell, his face turned to the floor. He stopped at the door again, drew his hand through his hair and smiled. "I suppose," he said, "you are going to describe me as a red-hot anarchist. Well, say what you like; it cannot affect me."

"Do you live in Pittsburg?"

"Oh, no; I simply came here to kill Frick. It was not an accident. I have no hesitation in telling you this. It did not come into my head all in an instant. I thought over it a long time, and I said to myself: 'If I kill Frick and escape, millions of dollars will be spent to find me, and I would be arrested if it took them years. No, I could not escape, I would rush from the building and would be stopped and maybe killed on the spot by some of his hirelings. If not I would be hanged.'

"Then I asked myself: "Is it worth while to sacrifice my life to kill Frick?' I decided that it was. I was only one; and my death would be nothing compared with the happiness of the thousands of workmen who would bless my memory. The men would then win their strike, and the down trodden of this country would rejoice. I am sorry now that I made a bungle of my job, as my life will probably be wasted. You see I understand what I have done, and I know what my punishment will be; but as it is all in the great course I don't mind it a bit. I believe in liberty and justice. Does the capitalist consider that the workingman is his equal? Every rich man is a traitor to his country."

"Why did you want to kill Mr. Frick more than other rich men?"

"Oh, well, a beginning had to be made somewhere, and besides Frick was more prominent just now as an oppressor of the poor than any other capitalist in the country. Oh, how happy I would be to know that he is dead. Do you understand? I wanted to kill Frick. I came here to do so. I'm sorry I didn't kill him at once. Now I want him to die."

"Do you live in New York?"

The prisoner laughed and said: "I don't think it's necessary to say anything about that. I guess, though, I know as much about New York as you do."

"Was that your real name that you gave the police?"

"It was the name I gave them. The name I wrote in the book at the hotel? Well, that was the name I wrote there. You mustn't ask me any questions about that, or about anything concerning me before this affair happened."

"Did you intend to explode the cartridge you had in your mouth if you were caught."

"That's hard to say. I wanted to have it with me, as I didn't know what would happen to me at the hands of the capitalists. I had no immediate intention, though, of killing myself. I wasn't going to do it, at least before I was sure that Frick was dead."

The criminal riddle in the central police station here called indifferently "the anarchist." Alexander Bergman (not Berkman) and Simon Roachman, is still unsolved. He was whistling a sentimental air with some accuracy to-day when the correspondent was admitted to the calaboose. People who remember the appearance of Maxwell, the murderer of Preller, can form an accurate impression of him by making the nose more semitic.

He is a slight but wiry-looking youth, 22 years old, near-sighted and wearing glasses. His most peculiar feature is the mouth, which is large and sensual and has two curious flaps of flesh within the lips, which, when his mouth is open, still partially cover his upper teeth. His chin is strong, his forehead excellently shaped, and the ears stand out from the head.

He may be a printer, or he might be a school teacher or a reporter.

The only fault to be found with his appearance is the shifty, furtive manner in which he uses his eyes. He would not be a conspicuous man in a crowd, and he would be classed indifferently as a German Jew of some education.

That he is pleased with the notoriety which he has gained is evident; but that he is a dreamy fanatic, who has gone crazy over anarchistic literature is also probable.

Any study of his character must be deferred until more facts about him are brought out; and these are being eagerly sought. He has been photographed twice, taking the operation good-naturedly enough, and evidently trying to get a good picture. He reads the papers closely, and, while making no comments upon their news, is manifestly much interested in what they say, especially in the editorials.

The day was a sweltering one here, and Bergman had arranged his toilet to suit the weather. He had nothing on but a shirt and a pair of brown trowsers, and he was evidently suffering from the heat.

"I can say nothing yet," he said. "There is nothing to say. No good will come of any information I may give. When I am ready, which will not be until I go to jail. I will write a letter which will tell all this."

It was noted while he talked that his German accent wavered, as though it were partially artificial.

"I have already said to the police all that is necessary for me to say. I have committed no crime. I have no regrets."

"What is the truth about your connection with Most and the Freiheit?"

"I had none. Most is saying false when he says he knows me, or that I worked on his paper. My name is not on his books. I have done book work, but not newspaper work."

"Are you a Hungarian?"

"You will soon learn."

He was ready enough to listen to anything that might be said to him, but his answers were difficult to get, and spoken in a low, almost inaudible tone.

Bergman is a very docile prisoner, obeying orders cheerfully enough, but he has no very strong affection for the police, and he avoids them as much as he can.

Whether he has been two days or two weeks in Pittsburg is not known. The clerk of the Mechanics' hotel has identified the prisoner as Simon Roachman, who stayed one night in his house. The suit of clothes in which Bergman made his ferocious attack on Frick was bought here; so was his hat. He says he bought his revolver in the Bowery in New York, but this was doubted. Nothing whatever was found upon him which gives a clue. He seems to have deliberately taken every precaution to conceal his identity before going to Frick's office, and had his plan of committing suicide upon arrest been successful he would have remained a mystery, because the bomb would have blown his face away, leaving him a corpse that no one could recognize.

More About the Man.

New York, July 25.—Bergman was a printer's apprentice when he arrived in this country several years ago. In Vienna he was associated with Joseph Peukert, an Austrian who posed as a rabid anarchist for many years in different parts of the world. Bergman was of late years one of his most devoted pupils. He secured a job as compositor in John Most's office, at 167 William street, in the spring of this year. Up to that time he had worked at odd jobs all over the country. That he had traveled a great deal was shown by his talk to associates and friends. He has spent most of his time in New England and Pennsylvania. He had a peculiar disposition, and was not liked, even by the men who held the same opinions regarding the social institutions, government and laws. He was a very poor workman and received as wages only $8 a week, while even Most pays $18 for a fairly good compositor. Most kept Bergman from April 1 until July 4. Then he discharged him for incompetency. Since then he has been doing nothing, but is said to have been drinking a good deal.

Mr. Frick Talks.

Pittsburg, Pa., July 25.—Mr. Frick was able to describe to a friend more fully than before, his memory of the assault. After the shots had been fired, Bergman still held his revolver in his right, while with the left hand he drew the knife. Mr. Reishman had the maddened assasin by the right, trying to wrest the pistol from him, and Mr. Frick had clutched his throat, thus the three men struggled and swayed about the room. Bergman in the meantime plying his knife, cutting into his victim upon every opportunity that the chances and changes of the struggle gave him. Three of the wounds barely missed being fatal.

Nothing in his life has so thoroughly demonstrated Mr. Frick's courage and self control as the dastardly assault upon his life and the exciting scenes which followed. All who were in the office from the time the assassin fired the shots until he was removed to his residence in Homewood agree that he was calmer and more self-possessed than any one about him.

He could hear the newsboys on the streets shouting "All about the assassination of H. C. Frick!" and the voices of the thousands of people crowded into Fifth avenue about his office; but he was little affected by it as though it had been a matter in which he was not directly interested.

Bergman's Philadelphia Life.

New Haven, Conn., July 25.—Alexander Bergman, the man who made the attempt on General Manager Frick's life in Pittsburg, worked in this city three years ago. He was known here as an advocate of anarchistic theories. He belonged to none of the groups, but carried on his work as an individual. While here he lived with a woman named Goldbaum or Goldsmith, and was known as her husband. This woman is working throughout the country, having lectured nearly everywhere on anarchistic doctrines. She and Bergman separated after living together about three or four months. Bergman's employer here, who is the editor of an influential German weekly newspaper, knows very little of the man, beyond the facts already stated. No one seems to know whence he came, or where he went after leaving this city. A local anarchist who knew Bergman during his residence here, said he was one of those who never ally themselves with the regular organizations, the "groups," preferring to carry out their work as individuals, and after their own methods.

FIFTEEN ARE DEAD.

Another Horror in the Pennsylvania Mines.

The Only Man Saved Was the One Who Had Started to Warn the Boss of the Danger.

Pottsville, Pa., July 25.—The list of victims of Saturday's explosion of gas at York farm colliery has increased to 15 dead and one momentarily expected to breathe his last.

Thus not one of the men working in the vicinity of where the explosion occurred will be able to tell the tale of disaster except Llewellyn, the man who first noticed the presence of gas and the usual running of coal, and who, by strictly complying with colliery rules, had gone to inform the fire boss of these unusual indications and thus was absent from the vicinity of the explosion.

His story is that he and his "butty," Christian Hornicker, whose body still lies buried in the mine, had fired a shot with a battery in breast No. 1 on the second lift, and immediately there was a strong rush of gas and run of coal.

This gas rushed up the airway connecting the first and second lifts and was ignited, it is supposed, by one of the safety lamps that was either upset and broken or faulty, and the terrible explosion followed, whereby the men working in the immediate vicinity were affected as above mentioned and the gangways filled with fallen rock, coal, and timber, covering up the bodies of some of the men. All the bodies have been recovered except Harrison and Hornicker. The complete list of the victims follows, all of whom are now dead but one:

George Krise, of Middle Creek, 21 years, single, laborer.

William Jones, Minersville, 17 years, single, door boy.

William W. Weyman, Minersville, 31, wife and several children, miner.

Anthony Putlavitch, Pottsville, 30, wife and one child, laborer.

Herman Werner, St. Clair, 45 years, wife and large family, miner.

Thomas Jones, Minersville, 35 years, wife and four children, miner.

Anthony Stock, Yorkville, 16, single, laborer.

Henry Madara, Pottsville, 31 years, wife and five children, miner.

Edward Curran, Mount Laffee, 35 years, wife and two children, miner.

Thomas F. Landers, Pottsville, 27 years, wife and one child, laborer.

Robert W. Allott, Pottsville, 42 years, wife and eight children, miner.

C. D. Allott, Pottsville, 17 years, single, laborer.

James Hartzell, Lewellyn, 37 years, wife and one child, mine carpenter.

John Harrison, Wadesville, 30 years, wife and three children, fire boss.

Christian Hornicker, 36 years, St. Clair, miner, wife and three children.

George Stock, Yorkville, 22 years, recently married, still living.

Of the above, Henry Madara, Thomas Landers, Robert and Charles Allott, and Edward Curran, who were still living when taken from the mine, died since last evening.

CANADIANS ARE EXCITED

Retaliation a Subject of Much Interest.

Canuck Papers Are Growing Bitter.

Blow for Blow is the Way the Matter is Looked at and May Result.

Toronto, Ont., July 25.—Commenting on the proposed retaliation measures of the United States government against Canada in the matter of canals, the Toronto News (Liberal-Conservative newspaper) in an editorial headed "Give Blow for Blow," says: "It should be the policy of the Dominion government to cultivate the most friendly relations with the United States, but it is good to understand that this is not to be brought about by lying down and allowing Americans to walk over us. They have deliberately set about carrying out measures intended to annoy and injure this country; they have refused seamstresses living in Sarnia the right to earn their living in Port Huron; they have tumbled French-Canadian immigrants from a train at the border; they have put the linemen in jail who have crossed the frontier for the purpose of making some trifling repairs on the international telegraph line; they have refused to allow our sailors to seek employment on their lake vessels without first swearing allegiance to their native land; they are now endeavoring to turn the Grand Trunk ticket agent out of Buffalo because his family reside in Canada, and they threaten to impose an almost confiscatory tariff on Canadian vessels passing through the Sault Ste Marie canal. Very good. It is the duty of our government under the circumstances to return blow for blow. Americans employed in this country should be dealt with precisely as Canadian laborers are dealt with across the line. If Americans want fight, and nothing else will do, give them enough of it."

The Montreal Star says: "It is clearly idle to point out to the Washington authorities that they have wantonly violated the very treaty upon which their claims to the free use of the Welland canal are based. They are not in a logical mood just now. The drum of the campaign is too loud in the land. They are determined to bait us as a British community, and the position af affairs at Welland makes it a good enough pretext. All that is left for us to do is to clear our decks for action. In the first place any injury they can do us at Sault Ste. Marie will be merely temporary. By autumn of 1893 we are promised our own canal, then we will be independent of our natural allies from Port Arthur to the sea. But they, with all their boasting, will be at our mercy. Suppose we close the Welland against them, what can they do? And even if they at great expense, did duplicate this work around the Buffalo peninsula, then, as Congressman Lind told his hot-headed colleagues, they cannot build at the St. Lawrence river. We absolutely control the greatest waterway on this continent and when the game of blocking is on we can enter upon it with all the advantages on our side. Then there can be no doubt but that the St. Clair Flats are ours, and this is a point our government cannot raise too soon. Thus we can stop American vessels at St. Clair, at Welland and at St. Regis, while they can only check us for a year at Sault Ste. Marie."

The Toronto Globe discusses the question dispassionately.

Washington Post.

Washington, July 25.—Upon the same subject which Canadian newspapers discuss the matter in the headline "Give Blow for Blow," the retaliation bill passed by congress last week, the Washington Post in a leading editorial says:

"The Canadian retaliation bill has now passed both houses of congress and will speedily become a law. While a retaliatory policy is in some respects objectionable and as a rule to be avoided if possible, especially between such near neighbors as Canada and the United States, for the reason that innocent citizens are the victims of its oppressive results, there seemed to be no other way in this instance in which to bring the Dominion government to terms, and that such will will be its effect is highly desirable to the interests of all parties concerned.

"The discriminations against American commerce passing through the Welland, St. Lawrence and other canals are so obviously inequitable that it is passing strange the Canadian authorities should not readily grant the relief desired. They will doubtless realize in time, should their present stubborn position be maintained, that two can play at the same game, and that Canadian commerce is not exempt from burdens in American waters, so long as the vessels of the United States in Canadian waters are subjected to similar onerous impositions.

"Of course a toll upon freight through the St. Mary's canal of $3 per ton means that the ultimate consumer must pay it, and a toll of $5 per passenger means to the passenger $5 more fare, which would necessarily have the consequences of crippling shipments and travel over that route and thereby raising a wave of popular indignation against the Canadian government that would naturally compel it to recede before action by the president, under the bill just passed, is necessitated, or there is an imminent likelihood that the new government, which recently went into power with such a flourishing of trumpets, will find itself at an early day in the future ingloriously dislodged. The course of President Harrison in this matter has been commendable in the highest degree and the country is to be congratulated upon the patriotic response of congress to his recommendations."

M'CLURE AND M'KINLEY.

The Former Wants to Discuss the Tariff.

A Plain Letter From the Philadelphia Editor to the Governor of Ohio.

Philadelphia, July 25.—In reply to an invitation from Hon. A. K. McClure, of the Times, to unite with him in a joint discussion of the tariff in this city in September, Governor McKinley, of Ohio, writes:

"I have your favor of July 6, inviting me to a discussion of the tariff, and in reply beg to say that I am not fond of disputation; nor, in my observation, have joint discussions as a rule been profitable to either side. Did I, therefore, consult my own personal feelings in the matter, I should decline your suggestion at once, but I do not feel quite justified in doing that.

"It occurs to me that if there is to be a joint debate upon the great question of the tariff, upon which the republican and democratic parties divide this year, that joint debate should be arranged in their respective committees, and they should select the time and place, as well as the participants in such debate.

"If the discussion you propose is regarded by the republican committee as of sufficient significance, I would respond to their call. I shall, therefore, refer your letter, with a copy of the one I have addressed you, to the republican national committee, as soon as it is organized, leaving it with them to accept or decline as they may see fit."

Mr. McClure has referred the correspondence to Chairman Harrity, of the democratic national committee, with a request that he endeavor to arrange such a discussion.

THE FEEDING OF INFANTS.

The fact that about fifteen infants to every hundred born, die the first year, is significant and lamentable. "I am decidedly of the opinion,' says the well-known authority, J. H. Hanford, M. D., "that the general introduction of lacerated food would materially diminish this death rate."

VANDERBILT'S ALVA SUNK

Finest Yacht in the World at the Bottom.

The Steamer Dimock Strikes Her While at Anchor.

All the Passengers and the Crew of Fifty-Two Taken on Board the Big Schooner.

Boston, July 25.—The steamer H. F. Dimock, of the Metropolitan Steamship company, arrived here from New York about 8 o'clock last evening, having on board the occupants of W. K. Vanderbilt's yacht Alva, which the steamer ran down.

The Alva, under the command of Capt. Henry Morrison, left Bar Harbor at 6 o'clock Saturday evening, bound for ... I., having on board the owner and his guests, Frederick W. Vanderbilt, George DeForest, Louis Webb, Winfield Scott White, and Frank Riggs, all of whom are summering at Newport.

Early Sunday morning a thick fog set in, and it became so dense that Captain Morrison deemed it imprudent to run farther, as the vessel was then in the track of coasting vessels.

After making Pollock lightship anchor was dropped. Whistles and hornes were blown at frequent intervals, and every possible precaution taken to warn other vessels of the whereabouts of the Alva.

The owner and his guests were all sleeping in their berths, when at a few minutes past 8, they were aroused by a heavy crash, accompanied by the tearing of the plates of their vessel.

William Vanderbilt was the first on deck, closely followed by Mr. Riggs. Looming up through the fog they could see the dark hull of a large steamer backing away from the yacht. The steamer was the H. F. Dimock, whose stem had penetrated the side of the Alva, staving in the forward bulkheads.

The crew of the yacht hailed the steamer and informed the captain that the yacht must sink. Captain Coleman, ofthe Dimock, after receiving an affirmative answer to the question whether the boat remained intact, told the people on the yacht that he would lay by until they could be transferred to his vessel. A steam launch, four row boats and a naptha launch were then lowered from the Alva, which was rapidly sinking, and her passengers, with the crew of 52 men, were soon afloat and rapidly pulling away from their doomed craft.

Their exit was none too soon, for when they were abont a cable's length from their vessel she made a violent keel to port and righting again, plunged down bow first, and nothing but the three masts sticking out of the water indicated the presence of the magnificent ocean rover they had so lately deserted.

The party were all safely landed on board the Dimock, which anchored and remained until about 1:40 o'clock in the afternoon, when the fog lifted and a course was set for Boston, arriving at the dock of India wharf about 8 o'clock last evening.

The Dimock was going at greatly reduced speed at the time of the collision, otherwise she would probably have run right over the Alva and a frightful loss of life would have been the result, owing to the fact that all the passengers and one-half the crew were soundly asleep at the time of the accident.

The Alva, as Mr. Vanderbilt stated in a letter at the time of her launching, was not built for speed. Safety and comfort were the first requirements. She was a floating palace, and yachtmen pronounce her the finest vessel of the kind ever constructed in this country.

Money has been expended lavishly by her owner, and it is sufficient to say that he was fully satisfied with his vessel.

She was a screw steamer with barkentine rig. The American yacht list gives her custom house tonnage as 1,151.24 and her gross tonnage as 600.55. She is 285 feet over all, 252 feet on the water line, 32.3 feet wide and had a draught of 18 feet. The engine was a three cylinder compound, direct acting type.

THE ROBISON ELECTRIC ROAD

Nine Miles From Manhattan to the Asylum for 5 Cents or Ticket Fare—No Change of Cars—All Cars Run Through.

From 1 o'clock to 11 o'clock p. m. of each week day and all day on Sundays. the Huron Street and Depot Line runs through to the asylum.

There is no line in the city which presents such a varied and attractive ride. Transfers from all lines are good on this line until further notice.

Those who have not been to the asylum do not know what is there. It is worth a ride 100 miles to see the grounds alone. Talk of parks—one million and a half of dollars expended by the state. The grounds are beautiful.

OPERA WRITING CRANKS.

How They Make Life Miserable for Managers.

They all Think They Have Something Great and Most of the Plots are Laid in the South Sea Islands.

New York July 25.—There are comparatively few managers who produce opera, and for that reason they are flooded with an amount of manuscript that would appal the ordinary theatrical manager.

Mr. Barton, of the Casino, receives as many scores of opera in all stages of incompleteness as any one man in America. Chatting on the subject, he said: "We have about three operas offered us every week, which is probably the total output of the country, for they all come to us first. Only last week a lank, tall young man came in with an original opera he wished produced immediately, and insisted that I read it. This I declined to do, as the manuscript appeared to be endless, but I treated him politely, and asked him to tell me the plot, which he did. It dealt with a very bad man, who commited a crime and fled from America. He sailed away and was wrecked on a South Sea Island, where he married all the marriageable women and became king. One day he was horrified to see an American gunboat in the distance. It bore down on the island and the crew landed. Almost dumb with terror the criminal discovered that there were two detectives aboard in search of him, but they did not recognize him in the disguise of a native South Sea Islander, although they told him whom they were after. The bold, bad man allowed them to fall in love with two of his wives whom he divorced from himself in order that they might marry them, and then the detectives, as his subjects, were in his power, and, of course, the opera ended.

"'What about the music?' I asked the young man.

"'Oh, I have written that,' he replied

"'You understand music, then?'

"'Oh, no; but I whistled the tunes to the organist of our church and he wrote them out.'

"'Does he understand orchestration?'

"'Oh, yes; he has been our organist in Sandwich for twenty-five years.'

"Sandwich is a small town on Cape Cod. It has a population of some 2,000 people, whose chief industry is shipping sand from which glass lamp shades are made. The young man informed me that he had come all the way to New York to have his opera produced, and seemed offended because I would not promise to produce it at once.

"It is a strange fact that nine-tenths of the operas we receive have their scenes laid in some South Sea Island, while we produce only modern American opera now. Some time ago, when acrobatic entrances were the rage, a young man on a New York paper came in with an opera which he was sure would create a great success. His scenes were laid in Hawaii, and the opening scene was to be a canebrake on the seashore. The canes were to be constructed of rubber and sprinkled with salt water, and as the curtain rose a force pump we have on the stage was to send a blast of air over the reeds and out into the audience, thus giving them a sensation of really being at the seashore.

Sometimes women come in, and then there is trouble. When 'Poor Jonathan' was running a lady came in with an opera which by force of will power she forced me to glance through. It was a modern dress-suit opera of to-day, and when I asked her if I had not seen something of the kind before, she fired up and departed. A few months later when 'Apollo,' an ancient Grecian opera, was running at the Casino, back came the lady with a new opera. 'Have I not seen something of this kind before?' I again remarked. 'No, sir,' she said, and left it with me. It was the identical libretto she had presented before as a modern opera, with the names of the characters ruled out with blue ink and Grecian names written in with red ink. She had put the time back 2,000 years.

"In the mass of manuscript about the office this valuable contribution was mislaid, and its indignant owner threatened a suit for damages, and I believe took legal steps, but our boy fished it out one day and returned it."

Digby Bell said: "Every few days some one comes to me with a new opera, but I always tell him that my contract with Mr. Smith forbids my reading any manuscript whatever for the next three years, but if this doesn't get rid of him and he still insists that his opera is great I offer to produce it for three nights if he will put up the money for the scenery and costumes, and if it is the success he says it will be I will keep it on and refund his expenses. As the expense of a production amounts to about $10,000 the man with the libretto usually goes.

"Once in Brooklyn two fellows found their way to my dressing room. The librettist informed me that he had a great opera and that his friend had written music to it that the author of 'Tar and Tartar' could never hope to equal. Then the composer got in his work and assured me that his friend had written a libretto that for humor and literary worth was far ahead of anything in comic opera.

"'Twice as many people would come to see that opera as came to the 'Tar and Tartar.'"

"Every week," said DeWolf Hopper, "I receive 600 additional verses to my songs, 'An Elephant on His Hands' and 'The Man in the Moon.' Some of them are good, but if I used one of them it would involve a lawsuit with the composers of 'Wang.'

"A few nights ago I received 81 sheets of closely written foolscap. It was a letter giving the scenario of an opera and winding up with a request for two passes. Of course I did nothing to encourage the composer to enter the theater.

"Once I tried to be polite to a woman who came well recommended, and insisted on reading her libretto to me and playing the music on my piano. It was the worst three hours I ever spent.

"One opera offered me contained 75 speaking parts, and the gentleman who wrote it had probably never seen a stage in his life. One side of the stage was supposed to be buried in sunlight while the other buried in snow. Every few minutes there was a climatic change. The scene was laid in a mining camp, and the book told the story of a labor agitation. About 50 Indians would rush on the stage, then as many miners, then squaws, innumerable. A cyclone was featured, a conflagration, one or two floods, a rainbow and an earthquake followed each other in quick succession."

Francis Wilson was loathe to abuse those who submitted their work for his approval, yet he could find no words in their praise. "Yes," he said, "I receive a great many scores of opera, but the people who write the lines and verses never think of supplying the music; they consider that a mere detail which any orchestra leader can add in at the last moment.

"Nine out of ten operas offered me have their scenes laid in the west. I don't know why, but every one seems to think that the Indian is the most poetical creature in modern literature. I have never found him so. Sometimes some one does send in a manuscript with the music written in, but the songs are all familiar. The composer visits 'The Lion Tamer,' a few of the airs catch his ear, he goes home and unconsciously composes a variation of the tunes he had heard.

"Some day some one will bring in a great opera, but it will have to be built up with catchy music, new jokes and pretty girls. Comic opera is not born all at once, it is developed, and the manager who knows just what parts to develop in accordance with the peculiar tastes of the different cities the company visits, is the man who will build up the reputation of the composer.

"Give me an opera with 20 pretty girls in the chorus and half a dozen catchy airs, and I have several hundred librettos from which to select my dialogue."

MARY ANDERSON'S MURDER

The Mystery May at Last be Solved.

Morris Berg Arrested in Chicago Charged With the Crime—Positive Identification.

Chicago, July 25.—Morris Berg was arrested here Saturday night for the murder of Mary Anderson. Johnny Bersel, one of the small boys chased from the scene of the murder by two men just before the crime was committed, identified Berg as one of the men who chased him. There is proof that Berg and another man left Perth Amboy on a freight train just 35 minutes after the murdered girl's body was discovered. Berg denies that he was ever in Perth Amboy, and makes several other statements known to be false. His companion, he states, has gone west—just where he does not know.

Berg came here about a month ago, only a few days after the murder, and was located in Chicago six days ago. The reporters laid their information before the county prosecutor, and he detailed a state detective to go to Chicago and arrest the man. Johnny Bersel was taken along for purposes of identification. Berg was arrested and taken to police headquarters. Johnny Bersel was taken into the captain's room, and then Berg and two other men were brought in and stood up before him. Johnny looked them all over carefully. Then, pointing to Berg, he said: "The man with the black straw hat is the man, only he had on a different hat when he and the other man chased me."

"I am positive," he added, when questioned. "It is the same face and the same mustache, the same all through except the pants and hat. He wore a derby hat." When told that he was arrested for the Mary Anderson murder in Perth Amboy, Berg started and changed color. "I was never in Perth Amboy," he said; "never in my life. I don't even know where it is except that it is in New Jersey."

He declared his innocence over and over again. He was searched and locked up for the night. Mary Anderson, a Danish girl, was found murdered near the Jersey Central railroad tracks, between Perth Amboy Junction and Woodbridge Creek, N. J., on the evening of June 9. She was a domestic in the family of C. W. Boynton, proprietor of Boynton's beach, at Sewaren. The girl's throat had been cut from ear to ear, and a ball from a 32-caliber pistol had pierced her heart.

Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:

My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

THE MEMBERS

Of the Y. W. C. A. Held an Interesting Meeting.

The 5 o'clock prayer meeting at the Y. W. C. A. rooms yesterday was interesting as usual, though the extremely warm weather prevented a large attendance. The lesson was from Matthew 10:29-33, and the topic, "God, My Father."

WANT THE MONEY,

Hence Bellman, Machen & Co. Sue an Insurance Company.

In common pleas court to-day Bellman, Machen & Co. sued the New York Fire Insurance company, to recover $987.50, loss alleged to have been entailed by fire in the company's cold storage house at Manhattan, December 2, 1891, which is alleged to be secured by policy held against the defendant insurance company.

THE BIG CIRCUS

Gives Two Performances to Sweltering Audiences.

The Barnum & Bailey show drew large crowds Saturday despite the sweltering weather. The circus performance was good throughout, although there was nothing specially startling about it. Columbus, the new spectacular feature, is a grand affair, but does not come up to Nero. Last year's entertainment was much more satisfactory.

LARGE FUNERAL.

Sons of Veterans Present from Different Parts of the State.

The funeral of Mr. Bert Washburne, whose sad death by drowning on Friday last has already been mentioned in the Bee, took place from his late residence near Richfield Center yesterday, and was conducted by the Sons of Veterans, of which order the deceased was an honored member. The funeral was the largest ever seen in that section.

HOW DID IT HAPPEN?

It Is thought That Circus Followers Caused Saturday's Fire.

Saturday evening the grand stand at the base ball grounds burned down. No one knows how the fire originated, but it is supposed that the sharpers who follow the circus did it to stampede the crowd inside the tent, that they might do some stealing in the rush and excitement. Luckily, however, what might have been a panic was arrested. The show people told the audience to sit down as there was no danger. Several ladies fainted away, but the great mas of people kept quiet and showed their good sense.

Mr. Gunnels carried $2,000 insurance, which no doubt will cover the loss.

MAUMEE ROLLING MILL.

Its Employes Are Not Affected by the Scale.

A short time ago the Bee printed an item relative to the much discussed scale of wages as fixed by the Amalgamated association, and its probable effect with regard to the Maumee rolling mill employes. Toledo is the sixth section of the Youngstown district. There are some slight changes in the scale, but fortunately do not affect any of the grades handled at Toledo's mill. This will be gratifying to citizens in general, especially to those of the East Side, where the employes have erected homes and are otherwise aiding in building up this section of the city.

LABOR NOTES.

Special Meeting of Joan of Arc Assembly To-Night.

The circus and the heat made a combination that prevented lengthy sessions at the Saturday evening meetings. The Stationary Engineers held their regular meeting, but transacted no business of importance.

This is the regular meeting night of the Building Trades council, the Cigarmakers, the Metal Polishers, the Tallymen, and Machinists' union No. 11.

Joan of Arc assembly will hold a special meeting at the free employment office this (Monday) evening, to receive the reports on tickets sold for the Pastime excursion. Every person who has not reported is expected to do so this evening.

THE CRESCENT CLUB

Has Secured Odeon Hall and Will Use it for Headquarters.

The Crescent club has secured a lease on Odeon hall for a term of years, and will occupy their new hall on the 1st of September, after which it will be known as "Crescent hall." The hall will be remodelled, repainted and fixed up in the best style. The opening will probably occur on the second Wednesday in September. The Crescent club was organized three years ago the 10th of March, and has become a popular and important one in Toledo's society world. They are always willing to help entertain strangers, and when their new quarters are finished will be in fine shape for this as well as other social work. The officers and members of this club are: Frank Whartenby, president; M. G. Gill, vice president; J. D. Hurlbut, secretary and treasurer; Geo. J. Rayman, sergeant-at-arms; A. H. Kruger, Wm. R. Cleary, John Quinlin, L. S. White, Frank McHugh, L. M. Fluhart, Harry Picard, E. Suder, Wm. Fredericks.

Saturday Base Ball and Sunday Meetings.

The game of base ball between the Y. M. C. A.'s and Outing club teams on Saturday afternoon was well played with regard to field work, etc. The game had but little excitement in it, however, because of very light batting. Most of the amusemnet was found in seeing man after man "swipe" the air without hitting anything. Only about five base hits were made throughout the game. The batteries were Root and Oblinger, Y. M. C. A.; Whittlesey and Dodge, Outing club. The score was 6 to 3 in favor of the Y. M. C. A.'s. Another game will be played next Saturday.

A young men's meeting is to be held in the junior department rooms of the Y. M. C. A. to-night at 8 o'clock, to which all young men are cordially invited. Mr. James Sprague is to conduct the services, choosing for the topic for consideration "Saved, but not by Works." Plenty of fans and ice water will be provided.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY

Celebrated by Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Schlagheck.

At their pleasant home on Winn street on Saturday evening, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Schlagheck observed their twenty-fifth marriage anniversary. There was a large and merry party of guests present, and the gifts and souvenirs were numerous and beautiful. One of the handsomest presents received was a beautiful clock in silver case, presented by the following members of the Harmonie club: Mr. and Mrs. Clavans, Mr. and Mrs. Hillebrand, Mr. and Mrs. Heyman, Mr. and Mrs. Hume, Mr. and Mrs. H. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. C. Knecht, Mr. and Mrs. Lemonkugel, Mr. and Mrs. F. Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. E. Meiring, Mr. and Mrs. Plassendal, Mr. and Mrs. Wagner.

Other handsome gifts were presented by Mrs. A. Beck, Mr. Louis Beck, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Beck, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Domitio, Mr. and Mrs. Buckhart, Mr. and Mrs. N. Kight, Mr. and Mrs. Stright, Mr. and Mrs. Hezzelman, Mrs. Vanderbrook, Mr. and Mrs. H. Werthmeyer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Kollin, Mrs. A. Schlagheck, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Schlagheck, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schlagheck, Mr. John Schlagheck, Miss Mary Schlagheck, Mr. and Mrs. Schoenberger, Mr. and Mrs. F. Ludwig, Mr. and Mrs. Benning. A delightful evening was spent and it was a late hour before the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Schlagheck many happy returns.

REV. DR. COLEMAN

Preaches a Powerful Sermon at Trinity Church.

The Right Rev. Dr. Coleman, Bishop of Delaware, who is affectionately remembered by many as a former rector of Trinity Parish, in this city, spent Sunday in the city, and at the morning service in Trinity church preached a powerful sermon to a fair sized congregation, notwithstanding the extreme heat of the weather. The Bishop took for his text Psalm 44:4, "Thou art my King, O God," and showed how David, although an absolute monarch, and subject to the temptations of pride and self-sufficiency of one who had been raised from the humblest lot to the most exalted position, still acknowledged his dependence upon God. The Bishop argued for the eternal supremacy of the Divine Laws of truth and justice, which never could be repealed or transgressed with impunity, and which we, as subjects of the King of Kings, are bound to obey. It was a common though erroneous notion that in a "free country" a man might do, think, believe and give as he chose, but the laws of the kindom are unimatable and irrespective of the likes or dislikes of the creature.

The Bishop closed with an eloquent appeal to regard purity and justice in politics in reference to the coming elections.

Dr. Coleman preached at St. Andrew's mission in the afternoon and in the evening at St. Paul's, East Toledo, leaving at night to take part in the consecration services of Dr. Hale as assistant bishop of Springfield.

AT LAKESIDE.

The I. O. G. T. Have a Nice Day for Their Meeting.

Lakeside, O., July 25.—(Special.)—The I. O. G. T. people found it slightly cooler Saturday than the Epworth leaguers.

Cleveland people came in a body this morning by rail, arriving at about 11 a. m.

The regular classes were held as usual. The address "An Appeal to Caesar" at 11 a. m., was a grand one, largely attended. It was delivered by Rev. H. H. Emmett, Grand Chaplain of Ohio.

At 2:30 p. m., the auditorium was filled to overflowing with an eager audience waiting to hear Oronhyatekha, an educated Indian doctor and enthusiastic Good Templar.

After the address by Oronhyatekha, Rev. Emmett took the platform and urged the people to take shares in the I. O. G. T. temple at Lakeside.

Several lodges took shares and some individuals.

The I. O. G. T. will lay the corner-stone of their temple at 4:30 p. m.. It will be a beautiful building when completed.

This evening the second grand concert of the season will be given. A fine program has been prepared.

U. K. ELDERKIN

Placed Under Arrest This Morning

With Charges Filed Against Him by Toledo and United States Authorities.

J. K. Elderkin, secretary and general manager of the Citizens' Insurance company at 321 Superior street, was arrested by two detectives this morning and taken to the police station, where he was locked up.

The following charge was placed against his name on the blotter:

"Refusing to permit the examination of insurance codes."

At the time of his arrest, Deputy Marshal Lattimore made his appearance and notified Elderken that he was wanted on another warrant sworn out by Postoffice Inspector J. W. Weik, charging him with mailing a letter relative to an alleged scheme devised for the purpose of obtaining property or money under false pretenses, being a letter addressed to F. M. Garvin, Attorney at Law, Wheeling, W. Va., in reference to the West Virginia Fire and Marine insurance company, which was then a fictitious or illegal company.

Judge Pike was at the police station this afternoon making an endeavor to have Elderkin liberated. He says that Elderkin is innocent of any wrong doing. In regard to the first charge of not allowing the deputy sent by the state superintendent of insurance to see his books, Judge Pike says that Elderkin was sick on the day the official was here and could not attend to the matter.

In the matter of the second charge, Judge Pike said that Elderkin had bought up the charter of a West Virginia insurance company, but had done nothing with it in violation of the law.

NOT THIS YEAR,

But 'Smother Year We Will Get

The Bicycle Boys of the Country to Meet in Toledo—Talk With Mr. W. F. Dewey.

W. F. Dewey returned from Washington Saturday, where he, Frank C. Chapman, of the Chapman Hardware company, Joseph L. Yost and John Ridley, of this city, attended the annual meeting of the League of American Wheelmen.

In conversation with a Bee relative to the meeting, Mr. Dewey said: "Before we started to Washington it was decided that an effort be made by Toledo wheelmen to have the next meeting of the league held in this city. Well, when the meeting was called to order, there were just four representatives of Toledo present. An invitation was extended by Chicago, which of course was accepted, the world's fair being too great an adversary for any other city to enter the race. However, we secured the promise of a number of members of influence of their hearty support to hold the meeting of 1894 in Toledo. If we hope to get the meeting it will be necessary for all wheelmen to take sufficient interest in the project to collect funds to build a suitable race track. The generul opinion of racers that a one-third mile plank track is the best.

"The immense attendance upon these meetings is not genrally appreciated by the public. We have usually from 5,000 to 10,000 men in line, representing every city in the United States. Races and a big time all around are indulged in at these meetings.

"Work on our factory is progressing at a most satisfactory rate, and we expect to be operating by September 1. We expect to make four styles of a medium-priced wheel."

ROBERT BARBER,

The East Sider, Appointed Gas Trustee.

Mayor Emmick will Make the Official Announcement To-Morrow.

As intimated in the Bee Saturday, Mr. Robert Barber, of the East Side, has been appointed gas trustee in place of Mr. A. L. Backus, resigned.

Mayor Emmick stated to a Bee this afternoon that he had decided to appoint Mr. Barber, and would make the official announcement to-morrow.

Mr. Barber is an old-time democrat, and an ardent pipe-liner.

His appointment will undoubtedly give general satisfaction, as he is a thorough business man and a good citizen.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS

Engineer Topliff continues to improve, and will soon be brought home.

The new smoke stack being built at the wagon works will be as large again as the old one.

Thieves entered the saloon of Morris Conlisk, on Summit street, yesterday afternoon and took $15.

Monroe street, between Smead avenue and the Michigan Central railroad track, is torn up preparatory to paving.

W. Brumbach has contracted for two new houses on Milburn avenue, Auburndale, and two houses in East Toledo.

A report was in circulation last evening that Hotel Victory at Put-in-Bay had been destroyed by fire, but there was no truth in it.

Col. John Parsons is erecting a fine brick block on Monroe street, near Smead avenue. There will be two stores, above which flats will be finished off.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. A. H. Case, of Carey, who with her two children was visiting her sister, Mrs. C. E. Sumner, received a telegram stating that her husband had died suddenly.

The game of base ball last Saturday, July 23, between the cutlery works club, of Glassboro, and the Lion base ball club (Woolson Spice Co.) resulted in favor of the Lions by a score of 15 to 5.

RESIGNED HIS CHAIR.

Washington, July 25.—The Rev. Dr. J. McBride Sterrett, has resigned his chair in the Seebury divinity school, Faribault, Minn., and accepted the chair of physiology in the Columbian university, this city.

WAKE UP.

If you wake up in the morning with a bitter or bad taste in your mouth, Languor, Dull Headache, Despondency, Constipation, take Simmons Liver Regulator. It corrects the bilious stomach, sweetens the breath and cleanses the furred tongue. Children as well as adults sometimes eat something that does not digest well, producing Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Restlessness, or Sleeplessness—a good dose of Regulator will give relief. So perfectly harmless is this remedy that it can be taken by the youngest infant or the most delicate person without injury, no matter what the condition of the system may be. It can do no harm if it does no good, but its reputation for 40 years proves it

HARI KARI.

A Columbus, Ohio, Convict Disembowels Himself.

Columbus, O., July 25.—Hari Kari, the Japanese manner of suicide, seems to have struck a popular chord here.

One week ago an aged German citizen ended his life by cutting open his abdomen. Early Sunday morning a prisoner at the penitentiary attempted to shuffle off by the same method. Frank Noel, serving three years from Hardin county for manslaughter, is the latest victim of the craze. Disappointment in love and confinement in prison prompted him to commit suicide.

With an old shoe knife, which he had obtained in some mysterious manner, he ripped open his abdomen. His bowels dropped down upon the floor of his cell, and he presented a horrible spectacle when he was discovered a few moments later by his guard.

Dr. Heinlein, the penitentiary physician, dressed the wounds, and there is little doubt of Noel's recovery. His crime was the killing of a man who came between Noel and a girl he was engaged to marry.

TWO MEN KILLED.

Madrid, July 25.—At the opening of the annual fair at Almeda yesterday a dispute between a civilian and a soldier led to a riot. The people attacked the soldiers, who fired, killing two citizens and wounding nine others. Order was then restored.

BISHOP CLAUGHTON DEAD.

London, July 25.—The Right Rev. Thomas Leigh Claughton, late bishop of St. Albans, is dead. Bishop Claughton was born Nov. 6, 1808. He married a sister of the Earl of Dudley. He was a professor of poetry at Oxford from 1852 to 1857 and was made bishop of Rochester in 1867. He was transferred to St. Albans in 1877 and resigned on account of old age in 1890.

DO YOU WANT GOLD?

Cripple Creek is not a health resort. It is a wealth resort. Quite a difference! Location, near Pike's Peak, in Colorado. Gold—bright, yellow gold, is found at grass roots and in the rock formation.

Reliable experts claim this is to-day the richest camp in Colorado. Assays average $100 per ton, and have run as high as $5,000. One hundred people a day are now rushing to Fremont, chief town of the district.

The chance of a life-time is worth looking after!

You can get there quickly and comfortably by taking Santa Fe Route. Only line with no change of cars from Chicago, Kansas City and other principal cities to Florissant, nearest railroad station, with daily stages to Fremont.

Organized Anarchy.

Gov. Pattison says the condition of the Homestead affair which impels one set of men to say that another class shall not work in their places is organized anarchy. This is a vigorous expression, perhaps an extreme one, yet what he describes partakes of lawlessness, which is anarchy.

But oppression always begets antagonism and lawlessness. The refusal, in advance, of the Carnegie people to reason or arbitrate with the men who own their homes at Homestead had everything to do with precipitating the trouble, and the employment of the hated Pinkertons to enforce their evictive methods aggravated the serious situation.

Out of this condition and trouble the red hand of the assassin appeared from an unexpected quarter, but with such startling force as to again remind the American people of the dangerous element already existing in this country, and which, under our loose immigration laws, is easily transported to our shores from other nations.

The man Bergman, who attempted to kill Manager Frick, on Saturday, is an instrument of this dangerous element, no better and no worse than the bomb-throwers of Chicago's haymarket. This new anarchist is a new comer to America, a confessed student and employe of Johann Most, that unhung anarchist of New York.

We say that anarchy has no place on American soil, yet it exists and is prepared to take advantage of every occasion of local trouble to raise its bloody hand against society. It is here to do its worst and the government must deal with it with vigorous measures. Politics is of minor consequence when society is in danger. Our immigration laws are entirely too lax and must be strengthened so as to prevent the landing of anarchistic murderers. How, is a difficult question to answer, but in the exercise of the majesty of right and the supremacy of law and order, the American people never yet failed to be united and supreme. There is a way where there is a defined will, and statesmen, not politicians, must find the way to control trouble by arbitration and to crush out the last spark of anarchy in this country of history and destiny.

Frank Hurd To-Night.

Memorial hall will hold a big crowd to-night to listen to the masterful exposition of the subject of the protective tariff in relation to wages, by the Hon. Frank Hurd. Mr. Hurd has made this subject the study of his riper years and there is no abler and more eloquent advocate of the equal rights of American citizens as opposed to the enormity of class legislation and favoritism under present-day rule, in the United States. Mr. Hurd is earnest, logical, convincing and entertaining. Honest students of the leading issue of the present campaign can not afford to miss this educational opportunity.

If it be true, as testified, that Carnegie's clean profits in one year are a million and a half dollars and that his skilled workmen are able to build homes worth two or three thousand dollars in six-years' time, it is about time that farmers and mechanics began to inquire into the matter and to understand why Pennsylvania is a high protective tariff state. Neither is it strange that the Homestead workers should insist that their fractional part of the benefits be not cut down, for in their name and by their votes is it secured. However the present conflict shall terminate the people will come to understand that the iron and steel industry in this country no longer needs support from the government.

Manager Frick got his start in life keeping a saloon in the Connellsville coke-mining region. He has been the determined foe of organized labor in every branch of his business history. He filled the Connelsville coke mines with Hungarians and Italian laborers of the cheapest and lowest grade. He has succeeded in every conflict with labor, hence his dogged determination to carry it through in his own way at Homestead.

It is hardly the correct thing to call the people's party the third party while the prohibitionists are in the field in force. If the new party shall make as sturdy growth as the third party has, it may be thankful. In 1872 the prohibs polled nearly 5,000 votes; in '76, double that number; in '84 it reached 150,000 votes, and in '88, 250,000 votes were cast. What party has shown proportionate growth?

Minister-to-Russia White is not only a scholarly and intelligent gentleman, but he is a shrewd and skillful writer. He made a readable campaign magazine chapter for his party, of the civil service record of the present administration. It doesn't consist with Mr. Roosevelt's report, but it's a grand good job, the difficulties considered.

The attempt of sensational organs to fasten the responsibility of the shooting of Mr. Frick upon the locked-out Homestead workers is as just as to charge the factions of the republican party that were warring to the knife-hilt, with the guilt of Guitteau's crime.

Rather a strange combination of riches and poverty. Andrew Carnegie contributed £1,000 to the election of an English-workingmen's candidate, and his own workingmen are locked out of his mills because they will not accept reduced wage.

They that sow the wind shall reap the whirlwind. It has been proclaimed and proven from the beginning, and yet the greedy harvesters of earth's treasures learn no lessons from the continual fulfillment of the law.

The act of this wild Hungarian, Bergman, will scarcely deter the great mill owners from transporting scores of the same kind to do cheap labor for them, even to the extent of law-breaking to accomplish it.

For all that Chicago has snatched away from New York within the last few years, she has given the metropolis only "Old Hutch" in return. No wonder there's a growl.

Most any other business man in the world would hasten home to look after things. Mr. Carnegie is the exceptional business man of the country in many respects.

Next November will be a month of events. Cleveland will be elected and Patti will begin her last farewell tour of America.

Sir Charles Dilke is "vindicated," Lady Dilke is happy. How about Mrs. Crawford?

Daily indications are that Wanny isn't in it this trip.

THE CADETS COME HOME.

Camp Toledo is But a Pleasant Dream.

Nearly Two Thousand People Witnessed the Bicycle Drill Yesterday Afternoon — The Storm.

The principal things at Camp Toledo yesterday were lots of people, plenty of warm weather, and wind and rain. The latter were very acceptable, as they cooled things off and made a grand display, during which the company flag-staff was blown down. There were a great many visitors in camp yesterday. At least 1,800 people witnessed the bicycle drill in the afternoon.

Among those present from Toledo were: J. H. Southard, W. R. Worts, Morrough O'Brien, Harry Basch, Mrs. Bronley, Miss Colburn, Miss Walsh, Judge MacGahan, Geo. Heyn, Geo. B. Smith, better known as "Col. Pluck;" Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Schaefer, Miss Mollie Farell, Miss Nellie Walsh, T. W. Walsh, Miss Maggie O'Brien, Mrs. Lindsay, Miss Lizzie Tucker, Miss Lulu Tucker, Ralph Holbrook, E. P. Leland, Fred Terry, Sam Logan, James Austin, Gale Hunter, Sam Heller, Harry Collins, J. R. W. Cooper, Cliff Valentine, Mr. and Mrs. Mert Robinson, Mrs. Ira Nigh, Miss Scherlitz, Miss Emma Wiedrsatz, Miss Ida Suncome, Miss Cora Sovin, Miss Minnie Kanney, Capt. Roulet, and Lieuts. Potter and Baker, of Battery D.; Miss Maud Beckham, Miss Hattie Lovett, Miss Mamie Higgins, Miss Mamie Sullivan, Miss Allie Baldwin, Miss Allie Rood, Wm. Farnsworth, Miss Peckham, Miss Minnie McCarthy, Miss Lotta Cole, and Chas. Farnsworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Froney, Mr. and Mrs. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Long, Dr. and Mrs. Yonker, and Messrs. Waltz, Nolls, Lehman and Miss Lehman were present from Bowling Green, and Miss Eva Disbron and Miss Lilly Kelly, of Wauseon.

The wind and rain storm that struck camp in the afternoon sent the visitors from the surrounding country skurrying homeward. It was a magnificent storm from a scenic point of view, and had other good features as well, as it cooled the atmosphere until it was actually chilly. The boys had to hold the tents down or they would have blown away. It cleared up rapidly, however, and put things in nice condition for dress parade. The parade over, Capt. McMaken addressed the boys in a complimentary manner. Three cheers and a tiger were given for the band. Just before the company was dismissed Sergeant Irvine, in behalf of the boys, said that, although the camp work had been hard, they had enjoyed it, and would be with Capt. McMaken next year to do it all over again. Three cheers were then given for the captain, and the last dress parade was over.

Greff Gassoway, an old Cadet, now residing at Fostoria, rode to camp yesterday on his wheel, a distance of 40 miles. Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Schaefer also ran up to camp yesterday on their wheels. Mrs. Schaefer did what a good many men would not attempt. She made the 30 miles in good time, and was as fresh as you please on her arrival in camp, notwithstanding hot weather, long hills and sandy roads.

At 3 o'clock this morning the company left its beds and went to work taking down the tents and packing up. They came home on the morning train, tired but happy, and with nothing but the most pleasant recollections of Camp Toledo.

HOME AGAIN

From a Foreign Shore, Goes the Song.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Ketcham 2d Returned From Their European Trip—Sights They Witnessed.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Ketcham 2d returned to Toledo this morning, after a four-weeks' tour over Europe. Speaking to a Bee of their trip Mr. Ketcham said: "We enjoyed the voyage and trip on the continent, more than ever before. The weather was delightful, all during our stay, not too cold nor too warm, but just pleasant. We wore our spring garments during the spring, and not until we reached New York on our return were we compelled to resort to mid-summer apparel.

"Going over the weather was rather was rather rough, but we reached Liverpool without accident or mishap. From Liverpool we went to London, and thence to Paris, where we remained three weeks. The races were in progress at this time, and we attended the Grand Perix, which is indeed a gala day in France. On this day there were over 500,000 people attending the races, and the throng was an interesting sight to behold. On the return in the evening, carriages came down the boulevard four deep, and at a snail pace.

"From Paris we went to Brussels. We gave up the trip through Russia on account of cholera reports from that section. We traveled all over Belgium, and I never saw the crops looking so fine, and found prospects of general prosperity so flattering as I did on this trip. Neither did I ever meet so many Americans abroad. Hotels everywhere are full of them. Only about half of our party returned, the remainder will take in Italy before returning."

A BIG FLEET.

Madrid, July 25.—It is learned that 24 warships of the different nationalities have received orders to proceed to Huerva to take part in the Columbus celebration there on August 3.

The fleet will comprise eight Spanish vessels, four Italian, two American, two French, two English and one each from Holland, Portugal, Austria, Greece, Mexico and the Argentine Republic.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Wheeling, W. Va., July 25.—At 10 o'clock last night Sam Winesburg was murdered and his wife fatally wounded by Mike Moylan and John Moylan, his son. The tragedy occurred at the residence of the Moylan family, about four miles from this city, and was not known till midnight. The murderers are under arrest.

ROAMING PEDDLERS.

Upper Sandusky, O., July 25.—The police arrested 13 Arabs, five women and eight men, for peddling notions without a license. They were fined, including costs, $22.50.

THE CLOSING WEEK.

Congress is About Ready to Adjourn.

Anti-Option and World's Fair Causing the Delay.

What the Committees on Conference Are Doing Toward Getting Ready to go Home.

Washington, July 25.—There are but two obstacles now in the way of an early adjournment of congress and they are the world's fair amendment of the sundry civil appropriation bill and the pending anti-options bill in the senate. When they are disposed of, or at least the first of them the session will undoubtedly terminate. As to the first, there may be difficulty of a serious nature, but it is hardly expected that the friends of the anti-options bill can carry out their threat of keeping congress together until it acts upon the bill.

In the senate the week will probably be characterized by the number of speeches delivered. They will cover much ground and many subjects, ranging from the tariff through the relations of capital and labor, and returning to the anti-options bill. Whenever the conferees on the sundry civil or the deficiency appropriation bills (the only remaining appropriation bills) are ready to report they will command the instant attention of the senate, and it may be that some time will be consumed in discussing the nature of the instructions that will be given to the conferees in regard to the few points of disagreement which remain unadjusted. Otherwise the senate will probably spend the time before adjournment in listening to speeches or acting upon bills on the calendar that arouse no opposition.

Nine-tenths of the members of the house have set their eyes on adjournment this week, and the proceedings of the house will be largely governed by the personal desires of members to get away.

Action on conference reports of the two remaining appropriation bills will be awaited impatiently. The conference report on the few items of dispute yet left in the deficiency bill will probably be made to the house to-morrow, and it is thought that this bill can be put through its last stage in a short time, though the republican members possibly may delay its consideration because the Raum pension office resolution is to be taken up on Monday (immediately after consideration of the deficiency bill is concluded. The debate over the pension office investigation is likely to be warm and interesting. The conferees on the Pond civil bill to-day agreed upon a report which will be presented to the house to-morrow. It will not be called up for action in that body, however, until the day following, in order that it may meanwhile be printed and also that it may not interfere with the special order of the Raum committee. The report will show that the conferees have reached complete agreement upon all the senate amendments (some 300 in number) except the world's fair amendments (in bulk), and upon it a disagreement will be reported. The majority of the house conferees will recommend that the house insist upon its non-concurrence in senate amendments, which will be met by a counter motion that the house recede from its disagreement to the senate amendment. There may be some preliminary parliamentary skirmishes in advance of a vote with the view of enabling the members who have filibustering intentions to learn the strength of the friends and the opponents of the proposed government appropriation in aid of the fair.

The committee of conference on the sundry civil appropriation bill made unexpectedly rapid progress to-day and succeeded in adjusting all the points of difference between the two houses, except in regard to the world's fair appropriation of $5,000,000, in regard to which they will report total disagreement. The other senate amendments (some 300 in number), which were non-concurred in by the house, provide for an addition to the bill of about $6,000,000 distributed through almost all the branches of the service which it covers. The senate conferees agree to recommend that the senate abandon about $4,000,000 of this amount and the house conferees recommend that the house agree to grant the remaining $2,000,000. The conferees have stricken from the bill all the new legislation inserted by the house in regard to district attorneys and marshals.

The managers on the part of the house consent to the senate increase of the appropriation for surveying the public lands from $200,000 to $375,000, and various other large amendments are agreed to or compromised so as to fix the amounts as follows: For the international monetary conference, $80,000; for carrying the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion act, $100,000; for a special fund to be placed in the hands of the president for use in case of need to prevent the spread of epidemic diseases, $100,000; for the purchase of a site for a government building at Pittsburg, $200,000; for continuing construction of public buildings at Omaha, $200,000; for repair of public buildings, New York, $75,000; Chicago $50,000, Lansing, Mich., $25,000; for Rock Island arsenel, York $75,000, Chicago $50,000; Lansing, Mich., $25,000; for Rock Island arsenel, $75,000; for a new light-house at Nantucket, $75,000. Among the senate amendments wholly stricken out are those appropriating $10,000 each for the widows and orphans of three supreme court judges.

It was learned that the senate conferees refused to accept the O'Neill-Pinkerton amendment to the bill adopted in the house when the senate amendments were being considered. This amendment prohibits the employment of Pinkerton detectives by persons connected with the government. The senators were willing to agree to a modification of the amendment, but the house conferees were of the opinion that it would be better to give the house the opportunity to pass judgment on the proposed modification in preference to doing it themselves. Action of the senate amendement containing an appropriation of $50,000 in addition to one of $175,000 for the ascertainment of the boundary line between Mexico and the United States, was held in abeyance, pending the receipt of certain information desired by the conferees.

REORGANIZED.

Put-in-Bay Water Works, Light and R. R. Co.

New Company Formed and Will Take Possession August 1—Election of Directors and Officers.

The reorganization of the Put-in-Bay Water Works, Light and Railroad company was effected at a meeting held in Geo. H. Ketcham's office this morning.

The reorganization was the result of the recent purchase of a majority of the stock by the Industrial and Mining Guarantee Co. of New York, and of which H.H. Warner, the Kidney Safe Cure man is president.

The following directors and officers were elected: H. C. Post, Sandusky; Geo. H. Ketcham, J. K. Tillotson, J. F. Cline, F. M. Ohl and E. W. Tolerton, Toledo; H. D. Emerson and F. W. Peirson, Cincinnati; J. P. Carruthers and H. B. Baruch, New York.

Mr. Carruthers, who represents the guarantee company, was elected president. Mr. Cline vice-president, and Mr. Ohl secretary and treasurer.

Mr. Tillotson will operate the plant until August 1, when he will turn it over to the new company. The New York people will send on a general manager who will have charge of the electric road and of the entire plant.

STRUCK BY LIGHTNING.

Painesville, O., July 25.—The Nickel Plate depot was struck by lightning last evening and entirely destroyed, with its contents. Loss $8,000.

BACK TO STEEL RAILS.

The Duquesne Mills Undergo Another Change.

New York, July 25.—A special to the World from Duquesne, Pa., says: It is reported that extensive alterations are soon be made in the Bessemer steel plant of the Carnegie company at this place. The story is that the owners of the plant have decided to convert it into a steel rail manufacturing plant. All orders for billets have been cancelled and no more wil be made there.

The plant when put in operation by the Allegheny Bessemer Steel company, which built it and after operating it for a time sold it to the Carnegie company, manufactured nothing but rails, and was considered the finest improved steel plant in the country. The purchasers soon turned it into a billet plant. Why the change is made is not given out.

DISPUTED TRACKS.

Two Railroads Have a Little War on the Side.

St. Charles, Mo., July 25.—The situation caused by the seizure by the Wabash railroad of a strip of road between the St. Charles carshops and the Missouri river, and claimed by the Missouri, Kansas & Eastern road, is interesting and exciting.

The seizure was made during Saturday night. After the Wabash force had torn up and rebuilt about 200 feet of track the Missouri, Kanass & Eastern engine ran down the track and penned in the Wabash forces.

The opposing forces have been standing guard ever since. Both engines have been under a full head of steam for 36 hours and each side has been waiting to see what the other will do.

An application will be made to the courts this morning to decide the ownership of the track in dispute.

The strip of roadbed is small, but it is at present the only way for the M., K. & E. road to go through St. Charles on its way to St. Louis.

TO-NIGHT'S RALLY

At Memorial Hall —Big Crowd Expected.

Hon. Frank H. Hurd Will Address the Meeting—'Twill be a Cleveland and Stevenson Ratification.

This evening at Memorial hall will occur the Cleveland and Stevenson ratification meeting, and it behooves every citizen of Toledo, especially every democrat, to attend. Hon. Frank H. Hurd will deliver the address, taking for his subject "Protection and Wages." Just at the present time a topic of greater interest could not be discussed. Homestead and its practical illustrations will no doubt be handled in Mr. Hurd's usual masterly manner.

Memorial hall should be crowded to its utmost capacity.

Mr. O. A. Browning, chairman of the Lucas county democratic central committee, will call the assembly to order at 8 o'clock, introducing the president of the evening, Mr. Elmer White, who in turn will present Mr. Hurd.

SOMEWHAT SENSATIONAL.

The Testimony in the Bower Investigation.

Albert Laetner, alias John Lentner, Gives Some Interesting Evidence.

The board of revision had a hot session this forenoon in the Bower investigation and some interesting evidnc was elicited by City Solicitor Read.

The evidence of Albert Laetner, alias John Lentner, bordered on the sensational. It appears that a John Lentper has been an employe of the city, at least has been on the street commissioner's books for two years, and yet the presence of such a party in the city has been unknown.

Kirkham was on the stand for a time this morning, but no new evidence of any importance was secured from him.

Albert Laetner, Canal avenue, was the next witness. He testified that his name was Albert Laetner; that he had worked for Street Commissioner Bower since June 7 until last Friday, when he voluntarily quit.

Questioned by the city solicitor, Laetner said he had been offered the job of foreman at $3 a day on or about June 7 by Mr. Bower; that Bower told him he (Laetner) would be known as John Lentner. He never drew his own pay, but always let someone else draw it for him.

"When did you quit work, and why?" Mr. Read asked.

"I quit work Friday, and because I didn't like the trouble this case was getting me into."

"To whom did you resign?"

"To Mr. Bower."

"Where did you see him?"

"I went to his house and told him."

"What did Mr. Bower say to you?"

"He said I was foolish; that I could come here us a witness and my salary would go right on."

"What else did he say to you?"

"He asked me to swear when I came here that I had worked for him two years."

"And what did you say?"

"I told him that I would tell the truth."

"Were you ever called 'John' by any one?"

"No. My name is Albert, and every-one calls me that."

It appeared from the evidence that he had worked for Bower three years ago, but at no time within two years until June 7.

Cross-examined by J. H. Southard, the witness acknowledged that he had spoken to several parties relative to the matter.

He went to see Henry Hoerline, of the Hotel Union, Thursday. Did not know Hoerline was an enemy of Bower; wanted some information from Hoerline, who told him to simply tell the truth.

On leaving the court room Thursday he (the witness) was accosted by Daniel Carney, who asked him if he was John Lentner. He said he guessed he was, and Carney told him if he (the witness) swore he had worked continuously for Bower for two years, he (Carney) could bring the books to show that he (the witness) had worked for Lang, McKinney, Koster, Horan and others during the two years.

"He frightened you, did he not?" Mr. Southard asked.

"Of course; why should he not?"

"If you had not been frightened would you have not come here to-day and swore to the truth of what you told Mr. Bower, Mr. Baumbach and myself on Thursday?"

"No. When it came to the point I would tell the truth."

"Do you mean to say that on Thursday knowing what you told us about working for others during those two years that Mr. Bonner would ask you to swear that you had worked continually for him during these two years?"

"That's what he asked me."

"Didn't you think it strange that he should ask you tod o such a thing?"

"Oh, no, that's nothing."

Laetner is a German and does not understand or speak English very well. He seems to be an honest fellow.

The investigation adjourned at noon until 2 o'clock.

This afternoon Laetner's examination was continued, and was still on the stand when the Bee went to press.

CAMP FORSYTH.

Such is the Name Selected for the Second Regiment's

Camping Spot at Presque Isle This Week.

The Companies Arrived In Toledo in Good Shape—Camp Routine—Notes of Interest.

The Second regiment, Ohio National Guard, arrived in the city to-day and went into camp at Presque Isle. The regiment numbers about 600 men and came in an a special train over the T., C. & C. railroad, arriving at the East Toledo depot about noon. The train was scheduled to arrive earlier, but the work of loading the soldiers at the different stations delayed it somewhat. Company B, of Upper Sandusky, came in over the Hocking Valley alone.

Immediately after arrival the regiment formed and in marching to the boat made a short parade, marching through the principal streets. They made an imposing appearance and attracted much attention, large crowds turning out along the line of march to see them pass.

This regiment camped at Presque Isle two years ago, and while here made many friends by their gentlemanly conduct and excellent bearing. The officers and men were also much pleased with their treatment in Toledo, and the charms of Presque Isle brought them back again.

Col. James C. Howe, of Kenton, is the commanding officer of the regiment, but he is now assistant adjutant-general of the state, and the regiment while in camp will be commanded by Lieut.-Col. Collins. The staff officers are about the same as before.

The regiment, however, has had an addition of several companies, and has also improved in efficiency, even though before they were ranked as one of the best in the state.

Their camp at Presque Isle will be a great attraction and arrangements are being made for thousands of visitors.

Quartermaster Lowrey, and his assistant, Sergeant Fleck, arrived Saturday with a detail of men, the tents and a large amount of baggage. They have been hard at work, and when the regiment arrived to-day they found the camp ready for them.

The camp routine as embodied in the orders and which covers the daily doings of the regiment is as follows:

Headquarters Second Regiment Infantry, O. N. G., Camp Forsyth, Presque Isle, O., July 25, 1892.

Order No. 1: Until further orders the following hours of service and roll call will be observed:

Reville	5:30 a. m.
Breakfast call	6:00 a. m.
Fatigue and sick call	6:30 a. m.
Guard mounting	7:00 a. m.
School call (officers)	8:30 a. m.
Drill call	9:00 a. m.
Recall	11:00 a.m.
First sergeant's call	11:30 a. m.
Dinner call	12:00
School call (officers and non-commissioned)	1:30 p. m.
Drill call	3:00 p. m.
Recall	4:30 p. m.
Supper	5:30 p. m.
Dress parade	6:30 p. m.
Adjutant's call	6:45 p. m.
Retreat	Sunset
Tatto	10:00 p. m.
Taps	10:30 p. m.

Order No. 2: First call will be sounded 10 minutes before all stated roll calls, except reveille and dress parade, which will be 15 minutes before.

Order No. 3: Company and hospital morning reports will be sent to battalion headquarters by 8 a. m.

By order of Lieut. Col. Collins.
P. A. Campbell,
First Lieutenant and Adjutant.

This afternoon is being spent in getting settled, and dress parade will be about the only ceremony, but by to-morrow everything will be in order and the regular work of the camp will begin.

Gov. McKinley, Adjt. Gen. Pocock, Assistant Adjt. Gen Howe and other distinguished men are expected to visit the camp during the week.

The companies comprising the Second regiment this morning performed a unique drill without its being apparent to some of them. The colonel commanding arranged to mass the entire regiment upon one train within six hours. The first company to take a train was Co. F, Bellefontaine, at 4:56 a. m. Co. K took the train at Celina at 5:23 a. m., and the special train took on the last, Co. H, of Bloomdale, at Welker, at 11:01 a. m., the time being six hours and five minutes. The other companies reported at intermediate stations.

This evidences the fact that within a very short time this regiment, located in 10 different cities, can place itself in the field should emergencies arise. Last season a sham battle was a feature of their Bowling Green encampment, and attracted universal comment over the state. The progressive spirit here displayed is not second even to our own Cadets.

Camp Notes.

Am I an old soldier? Well!

Some fine music was renedered by the band in the parade this morning.

A number of ladies are in camp and more are expected to arrive to-morrow.

Company E, of Tiffin, was only mustered in last month, and this is their first camp.

The boys are hoping that the hot weather will let up before the heavy drilling comes.

The camp has been christened Forsyth Camp, in honor of the eminent soldier of that name.

"This looks like home," remarked one of the officers as he viewed the familiar camp ground.

The headquarter's tents are located under the trees and are about as cool a place as can be found this hot weather.

The blue coats and brass buttons will be a big attraction for Toledo girls this week and the dress parade will be a great feature.

The storm of last evening gave the tents a severe test, but the good work of the quartermaster's detail made itself shown and not a tent was blown down.

Manager Quale and Passenger Agent Clark, of the Presque Isle company, were busy men to-day, doing everything in their power to make the soldier boys comfortable.

The efficient adjutant, P. A. Campbell, of Kenton, was on hand promptly, and had plenty of work to-day. This, however, did not affect his even temper and pleasant smile.

THE CASE OF DR. GRAVES.

Denver, Col., July 25.—The state through Attorney General Babb has filed with the supreme court its brief in reply to the case in error of Dr. T. Thatcher Graves, who was convicted of poisoning Mrs. Josephine Barnaby, of Providence, R. I. Dr. Graves among other things claimed that Judge Rising was biased in his instructions to the jury and that erroneous charges were made against him. Attorney Babb denied all these allegations, and says that Judge Rising's rulings and instructions and the records of the trial are free from error.

WIND AND HEAT.

Sunday Furnished a Sufficiency of Both.

Weather Observer Hanner Gives Some Information With Comparisons Dewey, Rogers & Co.'s Roof Blown Off.

The storm yesterday was the severest that has been experienced in this section of the country in years, and but for its short duration, the damage to life and property might have been very great.

Speaking of the storm, Observer Hanner, of the weather bureau, said to a Bee: "It was the highest velocity of wind registered at this station in 20 years. It came from the southwest and struck Toledo at 5:30. The storm center passed over the lake region, striking Toledo, Sandusky and Cleveland in all of its fury. In fact all lake stations came in for a share of it, but the stations mentioned were in the center of it all. At 5:30 the register shows that the wind was blowing 25 miles per hour, which is ordinarily considered rather high wind. The velocity rapidly increased, and in 15 minutes was blowing at a rate of 60 miles an hour. This is a terrific velocity, and bordering on hurricane rates.

"There is but two incidents recorded in 22 years that the wind blew so hard at this station.

"The 60-mile velocity continued a little over seven minutes when it decreased as rapidly as it increased. If the wind had kept up to this rate 20 minutes longer it would have left a path through Toledo that would not have been covered up in a day.

"The reports this morning show that the storm struck Cleveland between 7 and 8 last evening, and that they had 60-mile wind and one and 28-hundredths inch of rain. Sandusky reports 55 miles per hour, and Buffalo 46 miles per hour.

"Judging by the time the storm reached Sandusky and Cleveland it was moving over the country at the rate of 80 miles an hour. We had 55 hundreths of an inch of rain."

"How hot was it yesterday?"

"The temperature yesterday was 96 degrees in the shade, and the records prove it to be one of the hottest days in 22 years. With three exceptions it was the highest temperature registered in 22 years. The exceptions were July, 1872, 97 degrees; July 7, 1874, 97 degrees; July 17, 1887, 99 degrees.

"I see no break in this hot weather, and indications point to more thunder storms."

Lifted a Roof.

The storm while it lasted was monarch of all it surveyed, but fortunately, its reign was of short duration. About the only serious loss as a result of the blow, was entailed by Dewey, Rogers & Co., wholesale boot and shoe dealers on St. Clair street. The wind tore off about half of the tin roof over the store and the rain thoroughly drenched about $60,000 worth of goods. Tinners were at work Saturday putting a new roof on the building, and had the job about half completed. That torn off by the wind was the old part.

HALF-MILE TRACK.

Geo. H. Ketcham to Construct One on His Farm.

It Will be as Complete, as Time, Location and Money Can Make It.

Geo. H. Ketcham has decided to construct a half-mile race track on the Ketcham farm.

The contract has been given to Mr. Tom Crilly who has just finished a mile of street in front of the Ketcham farm stables.

Speaking with a Bee this morning Mr. Ketcham said the track would be built and it would be as good as could be constructed.

Operations will begin probably next week and will be pushed to rapid completion.

TREASURER BRODHEAD DEAD.

Kingston, N. Y., July 25.—Nicholas E. Brodhead, treasurer of Ulster county, died early to-day of heart trouble after an illness of a few days.

Mr. Brodhead was treasurer of Ulster county savings institution, lately wrecked and now doing business under order of the court.

It was through his efforts that the crookedness of Ostrander and Trumpbour, the bank wreckers, was first discovered.

SO DIFFERENT NOW.

"Lost your rubber, did you, darling?
Wait, I'll bring it you again."
Thus he spoke and then he started
Backward through the falling rain.

On the crossing stood the fair one,
Pouting a coquettish way,
Scolding him for fancied slowness,
All impatient of delay.

Most provokingly it spluttered,
Did the arc lamp overhead,
And he muttered sotto voice
Things he'd better left unsaid.

Finally he found and brought it
Frescoed well with clinging clay;
And when it was readjusted
Daintily she picked her way.

Then he could not help but think him
Of the days when he and she,
Rustic lad and simple maiden,
Rambled o'er the dewy lea.

Both barefooted, tanned and happy,
Ere her father stern struch oil;
Ere he, that he might be near her,
Plunged into the city's moil.

Yet he spoke not of his musings,
For she had forgotten quite
That she knew him ere he learned to Wear a spike tail ev'ry night.

Wonderful things happened in Ireland as well as elsewhere, if the following can be vouched for, which is not likely: It is related that a gentleman in Ireland recently, on cutting open a potato at dinner, found in the center a half sovereign, around which the vegetable had grown. Though discolored, it was in a good state of preservation, and is now a pretty ornament to a watch chain.

The little baby daughter of the Chinese minister at Washington has only two years more of happy infancy before her, for when she reaches the age of three years her tiny feet will be swathed in tight bandages to retard their growth and to produce the pedal diminutiveness that seems hideous to American eyes, but is one of the delights of Chinese visual organs. The torture lasts for three years.

A new feature in the manufacture of plate glass has been added to the Diamond plate glass works at Kokomo, Ind., and in a few days oval, concave, convex or plate glass in any and every shape will be turned out. The polished sheet is placed in a furnace especially built for the purpose and heated to a red heat. In this condition it is bent on forms to the desired shape. It is then returned to an annealing kiln and tempered as in the original cast.

A Naugatuck (Conn.) woman, who is strong nerved, found a snake of peculiar color in her yard last week. She had nothing with which to kill it, but she remembered that on the kitchen table was a teakettle of boiling water. She ran and got it and doused the snake. Its skin was blistered and its flesh parboiled, but it did not give up the fight until it had jumped three feet through the air at the woman. The snake is known as a house snake, somewhat rare in those parts.

HONORING THE GENERAL.

Little Phil was a cripple, and poor, and he kept a news-stand on Eleventh street, the profits of which barely kept him alive. But he had a big heart and a tender one, and he could never forget that he had been christened after the gallant general whose daring and dash had won many a battle for his country. He talked to the boys about it sometimes, until his eyes flashed and his thin cheeks flushed with a glow that made his homely face seem almost beautiful.

All New York was in slush and discomfort that day. People who stopped to buy papers stamped their feet and wished the weather was in Guinea, or the rain would go to Spain, or somewhere else, and no one seemed to think of anything to look pleasant about. But little Phil did. It was the birthday of his great namesake, and the thought filled his heart with patriotic pride. He looked into the faces of the people who splashed along through the cold, wet snow, to see if they were not thinking about the great hero, and he watched the City hall and the postoffice to see if the flags would go down to half-mast, but either the cords must have been frozen stiff or else all the people of that great city had forgotten about the man who rode on the black steed to Winchester, thirty miles away.

"Hey, Bill!" he called to a newsboy who had been selling papers on the street, "whose picture is in the window to-day?"

"Not yours, Limpy," answered back the boy.

"I know, but ain't you seen no picture of any general with the Star-spangled banner around the frame, like on Washington's birthday?"

"Naw," said Bill. "Who is he?"

Then two hot tears stood in the eyes of the boy at the thought that in all that great city no one had remembered his general or put his portrait in the window, framed in the national colors, as they did Washington's and Grant's, but that the pictures of the play actors should be there.

"I'll do it myself, then, the best I can," he resolved. "I was ashamed to before 'cause it would look so cheap and mean the best I could get. Say, Bill," he called again to the newsy, "come and mind my stand a minute while I go out."

Across the street hobbled the little fellow, with nearly all the change in his drawer in his pocket. Patiently, and, with many slips and jostlings, he made his way to the nearest stationer's, and inquired for the picture of Gen. Sheridan.

"Gen. Sheridan?" said the man; "we have none. You might go to the picture store down on the corner.'

To the picture store on the corner he made his way through the throng.

"Yes, we've one at $250," said the salesman, impatiently. "No, nothing cheaper; we don't deal in prints."

The door clanged behind Phil and he wandered farther down the street.

"If I can't get the picture, then I'll have to do the best I can," he said to himself. So he went into another stationer's and bought a slate, and then stopped in at another place and bought two small flags.

There was one of the boys who could draw pretty pictures and he had some kind of a wild fancy that in some way a picture of the dead general could be gotten up, but more thought convinced him that, while he remembered just how his hero looked the last time he marched down the streets of New York at the head of the grand review, it would not be possible for him to tell the boy who could draw. And so he set to work himself with a crayon, and this was the result in bold letters on the slate: "Gallant General Philip Henry Sheridan's Birthday." Below this he festooned the flags, and the whole was placed in the most conspicuous place in front of his stand.

And many a passerby on that cold, disagreeable 9th of March stopped to look at the simple but touching symbol of respect for a dead but seemingly forgotten hero, and by and by a little knot gathered around the place to talk and wonder.

"Hurrah for Gen. Sheridan!" suggested Bill, the newsboy, to another after they had spelled out the writing on the slate.

"Hip, hip, hurrah!"

The boys took up the cry and some of the men joined in, and hats went off and there was a burst of genuine enthusiasm in spite of the raw air and slushy streets.

"Here, what's all this about?" demanded the big Irish policeman, coming toward the crowd. "Move on, move on!" It's blocking the pavement you are. Gen. Sheridan is it, shure? It's in honor of Gen. Sheridan's birthday," he explained to the driver of the handsome carriage which had been stopped by the little throng.

And the driver explained to the inmates of the carriage, and the next minute was ordered to stop longer while the gentleman inside looked curiously through the plate glass at the slate before he was driven on.

"Drive to City hall," he commanded, sharply. And on the way another pair of eyes than Phil's scanned the store windows and the flagstaff, and there were quick commands and active bustling in the places where this man's word was law and soon the stars and stripes were floating at half-mast over the City hall.

A little cripple newsboy had taught a great city how to honor one of its nation's greatest chieftains.—The Presbyterian.

CAUTION.

Imitations have been put upon the market so closely resembling Allcock's Porous Plasters in general appearance as to be well calculated to deceive. It is, however, in general appearance only that they compare with Allcock's, for they are worse than worthless, inasmuch as they contain deleterious ingredients which are apt to cause serious injury. Remember that Allcock's are the only genuine porous plasters—the best external remedy ever produced; and when purchasing plasters do not only Porous Plasters.

AN AMBITIOUS WOMAN.

Eefforts to Re-establish Female Membership in the Art Academy.

A rather important question is being raised, says a Paris correspondent, by Mme. Leon Bertaux, the lady president of the Union des Femmes Peintres et Sculpteurs, who wants to be elected a member of the Academy of Fine Arts. The last lady academician was Mme. Tigee Lebrum, who drew a portrait of Marie Antoinette, and, thanks to the royal influence, was elected in succession to Mme. Terbursch, although her candidature was hotly opposed because her husband—Lebrun—was a picture dealer and an expert. By a singular coincidence Mme. Leon Bertaux made a bust at Fontainbleau last year of Mme. Carnot, so that she should be able to obtain historical justice at the hands of the president of the republic, who might be tempted to take a leaf out of the book of Louis XVI. in the matter of the lady sculptor's candidature. The old monarchy was, on the whole, far more favorably disposed to lady artists than the succeeding regimes have been. Fifteen ladies were received within a period of 100 years into the Academie Royale, founded in 1648 for the purpose of enabling artists to set at defiance the too close corporation of master painters and sculptors. In 1793 the Academie Royale was suppressed. When the institute was founded no women were put forward as candidates, but then there was no law against their admission. It is on this ground that Mme. Leon Bertaux takes her stand, and it remains to be seen, if the third republic will show itself as generous to aspiring lady academicians as the old monarchy.

Is your blood poor? Take Beecham's Pills.

All Hindoos believe in witchcraft, and, in strange contrast to the old believers in witchery, they believe that young and pretty maidens are the chief actors in such uncanny mummery. If crops are blighted, or if a general sickness prevails they write the names of all the young women of the vicinity on separate tree branches, and then immerse the stems of the twigs for four hours and a half in a solution of hot water and aromatic herbs. If one or more of the twigs wither during the specified time, the young women whose name or names is attached there to is immediately put to death. Thus the influence of the witch is counteracted, the crops saved and health restored.

OLD HUTCH'S LATEST VENTURE

He Has Turned His Restaurant Into a "Second-Handed" Store

Old Hutch was sitting in the Pearl street entrance of his establishment, which runs through to Bridge street, talking with two old cronies of his own age, says the New York World. He was curiously got up. His long, thin legs were clothed in a pair of dark blue trousers. He wore a flannel shirt of a brilliant salmon color, except in a place on either arm, where it was mended with strips of gray flannel. He had no tie or collar. On his head was an antiquated black straw hat, which he must have had for years. He wore low shoes and white socks.

The large storeroom is divided into two portions by a short flight of steps. The rear portion, opening on Bridge street, contains a large fireplace, which probably would have been utilized if the idea of opening a restaurant had been carried out. In the front part of the room stand two long tables littered with the most curious conglomeration of stuff that ever a "second-handed" man collected. There were candles, soap, hair brushes and tooth brushes, all looking as though they had been more or less used, boxes of starch, flour, lamps, gas stoves, several brands of saucers, loaves of bread, mucilage, bottles, ink bottles, stationery, looking glasses, a coffee mill, and last, but not least, an electric hair curler. It would fill a column to attempt to give anything like an adequate list. Around the walk were ranged in the greatest disorder folding beds, chests of drawers, chairs and sofas, some of them piled up with cans of vegetables and fruits.

Old Hutch had two customers. He certainly is an affable, even a jocular, person to deal with. The first customer was a young woman who wanted two cans of salmon. She was told to go in and look for them, as they were somewhere on the shelf. While the young woman was searching Old Hutch remained outside. He joined her finally, and being asked the price of the two cans said:

"Well, I guess, 30 cents."

"But you only asked 25 the other day."

"Oh, well," said this most obliging proprietor, "suit yourself."

The woman paid the 25 cents, which Old Hutch pocketed with a good humor. The next customer was a young man. He was a very young man. He explained that he wanted a pound of candles.

"Don't sell 'em by the pound in New York," said the proprietor airily. "Sell 'em any way you like but that."

The young man blushed furiously at his blunder. He blushed again when Old Hutch asked where he "came from anyhow." But he admitted heroically that he came from Philadelphia. Old Hutch gave a snort that showed what sort of an idea an ex-Chicago millionaire entertains of Philadelphia.

To atone, perhaps, for the confusion he was manifestly causing his customer from Philadelphia, he began to offer the different articles in his stock at the most ruinous and reckless prices. Twenty-five cents seemed to be his favorite price. For that small sum he offered the gas-stove, the coffee-pot and mill, a looking-glass and even a chair. He urged the acceptance of the dilapidated hair-brush for 5 cents.

He even offered a small secretary, which he said was the only thing he had to write on, for $4.

The value of a good name was well exemplified the other day, when a man asked one of our druggists for a bottle of Sarsaparilla. "Whose?" inquired the clerk. "Whose? why, Ayer's, of course. Ye don't suppose Im going to run any risks with Hannah, do ye?"

TALMAGE'S SERMON.

Now is the Time to go to Christ.

Plain Religion for Plain People—Thousands Listen to the Eloquent Divine.

London, July 25.—The attendances at the services conducted by Rev. Dr. Talmage continue as great as ever. At every stopping point during his preaching tour he is greeted by phenomenal audiences. The sermon selected for this week is entitled "The Soul's Crisis," from Isaiah lv. 6. "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found."

Isaiah stands head and shoulders above the other Old Testament authors in vivid descriptiveness of Christ. Other prophets give an outline of our Savior's features. Some of them present, as it were, the side face of Christ; others a bust of Christ; but Isaiah gives us the full length portrait of Christ. Other Scripture writers excel in some things. Ezekiel more weird, David more pathetic, Solomon more epigrammatic, Habakkuk more sublime; but when you want to see Christ coming out from the gates of prophecy in all his grandeur and glory, you involuntarily turn to Isaiah. So that if the prophecies in regard to Christ might be called the "Oratorio of the Messiah," the writing of Isaiah is the "Hallelujah Chorus," where all the batons wave and all the trumpets come in. Isaiah was not a man picked up out of insignificance by inspiration. He was known and honored by Josephus, and Philo and Sirach extolled him in their writings. What Paul was among the apostles, Isaiah was among the prophets.

My text found him standing on a mountain of inspiration, looking out into the future, beholding Christ advancing and anxious that all men might know him; his voice rings down the ages: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found." "Oh," says some one, "that was for olden times. No my hearer. If you have traveled in other lands you have taken a circular letter of credit from some banking house in London, and in St. Petersburg, or Venice, or Rome, or Antwerp, or Brussels, or Paris; you presented that letter and got financial help immediately. And I want you to understand that the text, instead of being appropriate for one age, or for one land, is a circular letter for all ages and for all lands, and wherever it is presented for help, the help comes: "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found."

I come to-day with no half-spun theories of religion, with no nice distinctions, with no elaborate disquisition; but with a plain talk on the matter of personal religion. I feel that the sermon I preach this morning will be the saver of life unto life, or of death unto death. In other words, the gospel of Christ is a powerful medicine; it either kills or cures. There are those who say: "I would like to become a Christian. I have been waiting a good while for the right kind of influence to come;" and still you are waiting. You are wiser in worldly things than you are in religious things. And yet there are men who say they are waiting to get to heaven—waiting, waiting, but not with intelligent waiting, or they would get on board the line of Christian influences that would bear them into the kingdom of God.

Now you know very well that to seek a thing is to search for it with earnest endeavor. If you want to see a certain man in London, and there is a matter of much money connected with your seeing him, and you cannot at first find him, you do not give up the search. You look in the directory, but cannot find the name, you go in circles where you think, perhaps, he may mingle, and, having found the part of the city where he lives, but perhaps not knowing the street, you go through street after street, and from block to block, and you keep on searching for weeks and for months.

You say: "It is a matter of £10,000 whether I see him or not." O that men were as persistent in seeking for Christ! Had you one-half that persistence you would long ago have found him who is the joy of the forgiven spirit. We may pay our debts, we may attend church, we may relieve the poor, we may be public benefactors, and yet all our life disobey the text, never seek God, never gain heaven. O that the spirit of God would help this morning while I try to show you in carrying out the idea of my text, first, how to seek the Lord, and in the next place, when to seek him. "Seek ye the Lord while he may be found."

I remark, in the first place, you are to seek the Lord through earnest and believing prayer. God is not an autocrat or a despot seated on a throne with his arms resting on brazen lions, and a sentinel pacing up and down at the foot of the throne. God is a father seated in a bower, waiting for his children to come and climb on his knee, and get his kiss and his benediction. Prayer is the cup with which to go to the "fountain of living water," and dip up refreshment for our thirsty soul. Grace does not come to the heart as we set a cask of water to catch the rain in the shower. It is a pulley fastened to the throne of God which we pull, bringing the blessing.

I do not care so much what posture you take in prayer, nor how large amount of voice you have. You might get down on your face before God, and if you did not pray right inwardly, there would be no response. You might cry at the top of your voice, and unless you had a believing spirit within, your cry would not go farther up than the shout of a plowboy to his oxen. Prayer must be believing, earnest, loving. You are in your house some summer day, and a shower comes up, and a bird affrighted darts into the window, and wheels around the room. You seize it. You smooth its ruffled plumage. You feel its fluttering heart. You say, "Poor thing!" Now a prayer goes out of the storm of this world into the window of God's mercy, and he catches it and he feels its fluttering pulse, and he puts it in his own bosom of affection and safety.

Prayer is a warm, ardent, pulsating exercise. It is the electric battery which, touched, thrills to the throne of God! It is the diving bell in which we go down into the depths of God's mercy and bring up "pearls of great price." There is an instance where prayer made the waves of Gennesaret solid as granite pavement. O how many wonderful things prayer has accomplished! Have you ever tried it? In the days when the Scotch Covenanters were persecuted, and the enemies were after them, one of the head men among the Covenanters prayed: "O Lord, we be as dead men unless thou shalt help us. O Lord, throw the lap of thy cloak over these poor things." And instantly a Scotch mist enveloped and hid the persecuted from their persecutors—the promise literally fulfilled: "While they are yet speaking, I will hear."

O impenitent soul, have you ever tried the power of prayer? God says: "He is loving and faithful and patient." Do you believe that? You are told that Christ came to save sinners. Do you believe that? You are told that all you have to do to get the pardon of the gospel is to ask for it. Do you believe that? Then come to him and say: "O Lord, I know thou canst not lie. Thou hast told me to come for pardon and I could get it. I come, Lord. Keep thy promise and liberate my captive soul."

O that you might have an altar in the parlor, in the kitchen, in the store, in the barn, for Christ will be willing to come again to the manger to hear prayer. He would come to your place of business as he confronted Matthew, the tax commissioner. If a measure should come before parliament that you thought would ruin the nation, how you would send in petitions and remonstrances. And yet there has been enough sin in your heart to ruin it forever, and you have never remonstrated or petitioned against it. If your physical health failed, and you had the means, you would go and spend the summer in Germany, and the winter in Italy, and you would think it a very cheap outlay if you had to go all around the earth to get back your physical health. Have you made any effort, any expenditure, any exertion for your immortal and spiritual health? No, you have not taken one step.

O that you might now begin to seek after God with earnest prayer. Some of you have been working for years and years for the support of your families. Have you given one-half day to the working out of your salvation with fear and trembling? You came here this morning with an earnest purpose, I take it, as I have come hither with an earnest purpose, and we meet face to face, and I tell you, first of all, if you want to find the Lord you must pray, and pray, and pray.

But I come now to the last part of my text. It tells us when we are to seek the Lord, "While he may be found." When is that? Old age? You may not see old age. To-morrow? You may not see tomorrow. To-night? You may not see tonight. Now! O, if I could only write on every heart in three capital letters that word N-O-W—Now!

SOCIAL EVENT.

London, July 25.—One of the most notable society events of the season was the marriage to-day of Lieut. Victor Christian William Cavendish, nephew of the Duke of Devonshire, being the eldest son of Edward, the duke's surviving brother, and Evelyn Emily Mary, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Lansdowne. Young Cavendish was born in 1868, and his bride in 1870. The ceremony was a brilliant affair, the happy couple receiving the usual large number of costly presents, the most substantial of which, however, was a modest looking piece of paper which proved to be a deed by which the Duke of Devonshire conveys to the young couple the vast income accruing to the family from the Abbey lands taken from the monks by King Henry VIII, and bestowed upon the ancestor of the duke.

MAXIM'S FLYING MACHINE

The Great Inventor of the Repeating Gun

Turns His Attention to Aerial Navigation.

His Purpose Will be to Complete an Airship and Use it for Military Purposes.

London, July 25.—Mr. Maxim, the inventor of the famous gun bearing his name, expects in the course of a few months to make his initial trip in his flying machine, upon the construction of which he has been engaged for several years.

As the machine exists at present it is nothing more than a rectangular arrangement of steel tubes and wires, some 80 feet long and 60 feet wide, and measuring 43 feet from the base to the top of the masts, which form important parts of the structural system. The tubes forming the frame are of thin steel.

On the lower plane of the frame, which is a miracle of trussing and bracing with a view to combining the utmost strength with the minimum of weight, is a modified water-tube boiler, weighing in working order some 600 pounds.

The fuel to be employed is gas, made by a simple process from petroleum, and supplied to the 45,000 gas jets under the boiler in carefully regulated volumes.

Steam from the boiler, which is desiged to work at a pressure of 200 pounds to the square inch, and has no less than 48,000 brazed joints in its anatomy, is conveyed to two sets of high-pressure, compound steam engines of about 200-horse power indicated, which revolve a couple of two-bladed wooden screws, each 17 feet in diameter.

The main portion of the large expanse of baloon silk which will constitute the aeroplane, will have an area of about 5,000 square feet, set at an angle with the horizontal of one in thirteen, increasing at the back to one in fourteen, or nearly six degrees.

It will be sixty feet broad, but there will be two wings, one on either side, which will give a total spread from tip to tip of one hundred and ten feet. At front and back respectively there will be a beak and rudder, capable of adjustment at various inclinations to be decided by the steersman, so as to regulate the vertical movements of the machine, besides giving increased area.

The horizontal course will be determined by the relative speeds of the two propellors. With a supply of fuel, water, and three men, the weight of the machine will be from two to three and one-half tons, but the inventor calculates that there will be sufficent support for about four tons more.

From experiments made by him, he estimates that the lifting capacity may be fourteen times the push of the screws, and as, with a piston speed of four hundred feet per minute, the collective push of the two propellors is one thousand pounds.

"Many ask," says Mr. Maxim, "what use it will be put to in case it does succeed. To this I would reply, certainly not for carrying freight, and, for a considerable time at least, not for carrying passengers. Its first great use will be for military purposes. It will at once become an engine of war, not only to reconnoiter the enemy's position, as has been attempted with the so-called dirigible balloons, but also for carrying and dropping into the enemy's line and country large bombs charged with high explosives. If I can rise from the coast of France, sail through the air across the channel and drop half a ton of nitro glycerine upon an English city, I can revolutionize the world. I did not enter upon the work until I was convinced that the work was practicable."

AT LAKESIDE.

Epworth League Day Was a Hot One.

Notwithstanding the Sultry Weather Everybody Had a Good Time—Large Crowds.

Lakeside, O., July 25.—(Special)—Saturday was the warmest day Lakeside has known this season, but there are cool places all over the grounds and cool lake breezes make it pleasant for weary excursionists, of whom there are thousands to-day.

Epworth league day was a busy one to all.

At 10 o'clock Saturday morning a train of ten coaches arrived, bringing excursions from Toledo and points near there.

The "A. Wherle, Jr., landed at about 10:30 with an excursion from Clyde and many passengers from Sandusky.

At about 11 a. m. an excursion from Cleveland came by rail.

The "Frank E. Kirby" brought nearly 300 Epworth leaguers from Detroit at 1 p. m., and at 2 p. m. the "City of Toledo" arrived with people from Bowling Green and vicinity. Notwithstanding the immense crowd who came by water the numbers were greatly increased when the evening train arrived. These were mostly I. O. G. T. people, who will remain until Tuesday.

The band, under the direction of Mr. Noville, greeted each excursion with music and also furnished music in the park in the evening.

The addresses during the day were largely attended.

In the evening a reception was held at the hotel and fireworks were displayed from the pier. One of the principal features of the evening was a sham battle on the lake between row boats decorated by Japanese lanterns.

The "Osceolo" took an excursion for a trip on the lake and the "A. Wherle, Jr." went to Catawba.

Including those who remain on the grounds there were 5,000 people here Saturday.

LONDON IMPROVEMENTS.

A Plan Like That of Haussmann's for Paris Desirable.

We have nothing to say against Great Queen street, but we have everything to say of a disparaging and wholly hostile nature against Vere street, Stanhope street, Wych street, and Drury court, and a great deal of dingy old Drury lane itself, and we would like to see Blackmore street and White Hart street swept bodily off the face of London, says the London Standard. It is only elderly cockneys, who can call to mind the vast labyrinth of disgusting lanes and blind alleys which formerly teemed in the area now covered by the royal courts of justice, who can fully appreciate the necessity of completely purifying the region now between Holborn and the Strand. The Council Broadway, of Boulevard, or whatever name may be given to it—and York avenue would not be a very bad one—would without doubt be a splendid metropolitan improvement. Still, we look with distaste, and almost with dread, on the proposed perpetuation, or, at least, the toleration for an indefinite period, of those fringes of slums which will render ragged and unseemly the hems of the garments of the new thoroughfare. The slums of Paris were almost entirely destroyed by the unsparing, but in the end, beneficent hand of Baron Haussmann, and the structural transformation which that ill-requited public servant effected with so much energy, so much completeness and so much good taste was materially furthered by his stern determination not to allow any patchwork buildings to mar the stateliness of his lines of lineation. He put forward one grand design for blocks and mansions and shops, to be erected on a uniform plan and at a uniform altitude. The same sagacious scheme had been carried out in degree by Nash in the construction of Regent street and Waterloo place; but the aspect of that spacious and superb thoroughfare was, to a great extent, spoiled by the stunted stature of the blocks of houses. They are uniform, it is true, but the uniformity is that of a charity boy rather than that of a life guardsman. The curse of what may be called the new metropolitan improvements, boulevards is next to the fringe of slums, the patchwork system. The succession of long lines of houses, theaters, churches, factories, warehouses, music halls and what not, is interspersed by an incredible number of garish public houses and gin palaces, which, far more than the squalid streets, require to be "set back." We have the broad road, we have light and air, where formerly there were only darkness, dinginess and dirt. We can plant lines of trees along the curbs if we will; the traffic is immensely relieved; but the appearance of the entire thoroughfare is half ruined by the incongruity of the edifices which line it. Here and there is a really splendid and dignified theater, church, hotel or restaurant; but these ornaments to young London are wedged between and shouldered by grimy survivals of a brick-and-mortar past—ugly, unlovely and uninteresting relics of a metropolis without public spirit and without taste.

THIRD PARTY TICKET.

Wapakoneta, O., July 25.—(Special)—Saturday afternoon the people's party of this county, Auglaize, met in mass convention at the court house and selected the following ticket: Surveyor, Samuel Craig; sheriff, J. E. Wheeler; commissioner, Charles Schemmel; infirmary director, Rudolf Gessler; infirmary director, short term, F. M. Morris.

Antone Nelson, a Colorado cowboy, lassoed an eagle a few days ago. Nelson was riding over the prairie on his little cow pony with his lasso tied to his saddle when he saw the eagle flying ahead of him quite close to the ground. He started his pony on a run toward the bird, and when a short distance away threw his rope, which settled over the eagle's neck and under one wing, and he succeeded in getting the bird to the ranch house alive. The eagle measured eight feet from tip to tip of its wings.

Why is it that Strictly Pure White Lead is the best paint?

Because it will outlast all other Paints, make a handsomer finish, give better protection to the wood, and the first cost will be less.

If a color other than white is wanted, tint the paint with the National Lead Co.'s

Pure White Lead Tinting Colors.

These colors are sold in small cans, one pound being sufficient to tint twenty-five pounds of strictly pure White Lead to the desired shade.

Be Careful

to use only old and well-known brands of white lead. The market is flooded with adulterated and "so-called" white leads. The following brands are always strictly pure and are established by the test of years:

IN TRADING CIRCLES

Both at Our Home and Abroad.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 264,521 bus and at five other western points 659,529 bus, aggregate 924,050 bus. On the corresponding Monday in 1891 the receipts were 1,037,300 bus, with only 106,925 bus of northwestern wheat.

The export clearances yesterday were wheat 274,381 bus and flour to an aggregate of 380,000 bus. Exports of corn 112,830 bus and of oats 7,579 bus.

English markets opened dull for wheat and corn, and Liverpool half pence lower on wheat.

The Markets To-Day.

The storm of yesterday afternoon disorganized the telegraph lines and to-day there is a decided dearth of new points in the wheat deal.

The crop news from the northwest is by no means all velvet. It can be very consistently called spotted. It is lodged somewhat. It is rusty somewhat. Its harvest time will, many say, be from two to six weeks late, and the result is mere guess work. See condensation herein from the "Record."

We have on track here this forenoon 416 cars of wheat, of which 206 are No. 2 soft, 181 No. 3 soft, 14 No. 4, 8 smutty and 6 rejected.

The visible supply of wheat was decreased last week 628,000 bu. Corn increased 114,000 bu. Oats decreased 204,000 bu.

Expert travelers report to Kennett, Hopkins & Co., of Chicago, that the winter wheat is about harvested and yields 30 to 40 bushels of excellent hard variety of wheat. The same travelers report corn in a critical state, with hot weather and no rain. The latter was greatly needed. We presume Foster of St. Joseph, is detaining the rain, as he promised drouth to succeed in vicinities where rain was excessive.

The wheat markets have exhibited no new features affecting values, to-day. Prices have raised but little all day and generally dull markets are reported. New York has been weaker than the rest, and closes a shade higher. Chicago closes at a Corn is much stronger on reports of hot and dry weather in the great ex-corn states. Chicago is urging purchasers on the expectation of a 60c price.

Liverpool is reported closing lower on wheat and higher on corn.

In New York August wheat closed at 84 5-8c and September at 85c, a gain of 1-8c; August corn at 56 1-2c, a gain of 1c; September at 55-1-2c, a gain of 1 1-4c.

In Chicago August wheat closed at 78 1-4c and September at 78 1-8c, a gain of 3-8c; August corn at 50 3-8c, a gain of 1 1-2c; September at 50c, a gain of 1 3-4c; July oats at 31 7-8c, a gain of 1 1-8c.

In Toledo the business of the day shows a moderate increase over the past few days. The feature in the trade is the decrease in the premium between cash and July wheat, and the August future. The trading was largely for August and September. August wheat closes at a gain of 1-2c at 80c; July steady at 80 1-2c; September 1-8c up at 80 1-2c, all bid. On the call August sold at 79 1-2c to 79 1-4c; September at 79 1-2c. After the call July sold at 80 5-8c and closed at 80 1-2c. August sold at 79 1-4c and closed at 80 1-2c; September sold at 79 5-8c to 79 3-4c and closed at 80 1-2c.

Cash wheat was in active demand with sales of 80,000 bu; No. 2 soft sold at 80 1-4c to 80 3-4c and closed at 80 1-2c bid; No. 3 soft at 75c to 75 1-4c; August at 74c; No. 4 soft at 71c.

Corn, No. 2 at 51c; No. 3 at 48c; No. 4 at 43c.

Clover seed continues firm and prices are again higher. October sold to the extent of 550 bags at $5 60.

Close in New York.

Anti-Option Bill.

Fargo, N. D., July 25.—Following is a copy of a telegram sent yesterday by Charles Morton, of this city, to Senator White, of Louisiana:

"As one of the largest wheat growers in the northwest, without an interest direct or indirect in any board of trade, I protest individually and in the name of four-fifths of North Dakota producers against the passage of that most infamous measure, the anti-opition bill.

"I wire you, as our own senators are reported as voting with Washburn and the national milling association. If the bill cannot be killed, secure delay sure. Congress will not want to destroy our agricultural interests. Intelligent investigation will convince any fairly disposed mind that the proposed legislation is destructive to the farmer and the land owner.

"CHARLES A. MORTON."

SIEGE DECLARED.

Madrid, July 25.—The disturbance at Pontevedra growing out of hostility to Octroi duties was renewed yesterday and became so serious that a siege was declared.

A HIGH OLD TIME.

The Mercury Evidently Up on Its Dignity.

Many Deaths From the Heat Reported.

Sunday Was the Hottest Day Pittsburg Has Seen in Ten Years.

Chicago, July 25.—Deaths from the excessive heat bids fair to be more numerous to-day than yesterday. During the first half hour of business in the coroner's office this morning nearly a dozen deaths were reported.

Several of these were of deaths that occurred yesterday, but there were three that occurred this morning. The local signal service officials will give no promise of immediate change for the better in the temperature.

Newburg, N. Y.

Newburg, N. Y., July 25.—Thermometer at 10:30 o'clock recorded 90; very muggy. General appearances of an electrical storm near at hand.

Buffalo.

Buffalo, July 25.—Yesterday was the hottest day of the season. The temperature was 84, without a breath of air stirring. The heat continues to-day, the thermometer at 11 o'clock this morning registering 80 with every probability of going much higher.

Syracuse.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 25.—Yesterday was the hottest day of the season in this vicinity, the thermometer ranging for several hours from 90 to 92 in the shade. It is only a trifle cooler to-day, the thermometer at 11 o'clock indicating 86 degrees.

Detroit.

Detroit, July 25.—Fifteen cases of heat prostration have been reported as the result of the hottest day in the year in this city. At 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon standard thermometers registered 102 degrees in the shade, while the mercury in the weather bureau office, at the top of a ten story building rose to 98 degrees. The heat has been frightful, unaccompanied by the slightest cooling breezes. Among the cases of prostration reported three will prove fatal—John Hughes, aged 74; Annie Carson, aged 10, and Wm. Bell, aged 54.

Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., July 25.—The most terrific thunderstorm of the season struck Cleveland about 7 o'clock last evening. The day had been intensely hot, the temperature reaching 95 degrees in the afternoon. Between 6 and 7 o'clock there was a brief rainstorm. It was followed a half hour later by a second storm. Clouds as black as ink came up in the west and passed half way over the city before the storm broke.

Then the rain came in torrents, swept along by a high wind. It was impossible to see across the down-town streets, except when the blinding flashes of lightning came. The bolts seemed to be striking all around. Horse and electric cars were stopped and the passengers huddled together in alarm. The rainfall must have been nearly three inches and the streets were floode with water. The lightning played havoc with telephone and telegraphic wires, but so far as can be learned no damage to buildings resulted.

Heavy Wind.

Fostoria, O., July 25.—(Special.)—One of the worst wind storms ever experienced in this section visited this city yesterday afternoon about 5 o'clock. The tents of the Salvation army were blown down, while services were being held. Houses were unroofed and trees blown down. A buggy about one mile east of the city was overturned and the occupants severely injured.

Hottest Day of the Season.

Lima, O., July 25.—This has been the hottest day of the present heated Lima term, the thermometer registering 98 degrees in the shade. There has been much suffering and several prostrations. Policeman Hugh Patton was overcome. George Hutchinson, while walking to his home, fell to the ground from the effects of heat. Mrs. Sarah Alger, of Gibson City, Ill., who is a guest of Colonel Crabb, was prostrated, and L. Dow, a Chicago travelin man, was compelled to take to his bed at the Lima house. All will recover.

A Sweltering Day.

Cincinnati, July 25.—The heat here today was swelterin. It has been the hottest day known in Cincinnati for five years accordin to the statement of the sereant of the overnment weather bureau here, and within a few degrees of the hottest temperature in fifteen years. The minimum temperature was 75 degrees; the mean 87.5 and the maximum ranged from 101 to 104 degrees. In spite of the intense heat only one case of prostration has been reported by the police (though many others have doubtless occurred), that of Mr. Becker of 458 West Fourth street, who died of sunstroke.

The local weather bureau reports no storms, but states that heavy rains were common throughout the state.

THE ROBISON ELECTRIC ROAD.

Nine Miles from Manhattan to the Asylum for 5 cents or Ticket Fare—No Change of Cars—All Cars Run Through.

From 1 o'clock to 11 o'clock p. m. of each week day and all day on Sundays, the Huron Street and Depot Line runs through to the asylum.

There is no line in the city which presents such a varied and attractive ride. Transfers from all lines are good on this line until further notice.

Those who have not been to the asylum do not know what is there. It is worth a ride 100 miles to see the grounds alone. Talk of parks—one million and a half of dollars expended by the state. The grounds are beautiful.

General Manager.

RIOT AT A PICNIC.

Revolvers and Knives Were Brought Into Play.

Men Who Worked a Shell Game Got Into Trouble and Many Heads Were Broken.

Mascoutah, Ill., July 25.—A bloody riot occurred at a Turner picnic at Queen's Lake last evening.

Six strangers from St. Louis came to Queen's lake yesterday morning and ran a shell game near the picnic grounds during the day. A number of men lost heavily on the game.

Finally a dispute arose between one of the manipulators of the shells and an outsider. The trouble soon spread and a free fight followed, in which revolvers, knives, slingshots and clubs were used.

The gamblers finally gave up the fight and took to the woods. Two or three of them were badly hurt.

Peter Miller, a hotel keeper of Venedy, was cut in a frightful manner and it is thought he cannot live.

David Shelton, a nail mill worker, of Bellville, was shot four times and had a finger smashed. He is in a bad condition.

Joseph Miller, of New Memphis, had one ear cut off and one eye knocked out.

George Krout and Herman Miller, of Queen's Lake, were also badly used up.

A dozen more were more or less injured.

A grand excursion will be given on the steamer City of Toledo Wednesday evening, July 27, and Saturday evening, July 30, from dock foot of Madison street, at 8 o'clock, returning at 11:30. Three hours on Lake Erie. Music by the celebrated City of Toledo orchestra. Fare, 50c.

50 feet on Dorr street, near the new station at the crossing of the Lake Shore railroad, was sold Saturday to be used as a granite and marble yard. The prices of this property are sure to double before fall. Now is the time to buy. Detwiler & Co. are selling the property.

Dull in Chicago.

Chicago, July 25.—Owing to wires east of Buffalo being down grain freights are demoralized. The only charters were: Topeka, wheat to Buffalo at 2 1-4c, and Robert Mills, oats at 1 3-4c. All boats on market will be taken at these figures before night.

Duluth.

Duluth, July 25.—After last week's big wheat movement business is dull to-day. Rates hold at 3 1-4c to Buffalo. Wheat in store to-day, 3,361,872 bushels, decrease 41,173 bushels.

Buafflo.

Buffalo, July 25.—Coal freights were quiet and unchanged. Charters: John Eddy, John Shaw, to Chicago, 60c.

The Canadian barge A. H. Jennick, which hade luded the authorities for some time, was finally caught and tied up by a United States Marshal on a libel of $1,055, filed by Cook & Fitzgerald for seamen's wages. There are many other claims against the boat.

DRUNKENNESS
Or the Liquor Habit Positively Cured by administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific.
It can be given in a cup of coffee or tea, or in food, without the knowledge of the patient. It is absolutely harmless, and will effect a permanent and speedy cure, whether the patient is a moderate drinker or an alcoholic wreck. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It never Fails. The system once impregnated with the Specific, it becomes an utter impossibility for the liquor appetite to exist.

REMEMBER THAT

Up in the northern lakes lies the fairy Isle of Mackinac, which, on account of its great natural beauties and remarkable summer climate, has been reserved by the United States government as a national park. It lies in the midst of some of the most charming scenery and some of the finest fishing and hunting grounds in the country. The Michigan Central, which is the direct route to this elysium, has just published a profusely illustrated book descriptive of this region, which will be sent to any address upon application to Wm. J. Seinwerth, Southern Passenger Agent, Cincinnati, Ohio.

CLOSING OUT.

THE ROBISON ELECTRIC ROAD.

Nine Miles from Manhattan to the Asylum for 5 cents or Ticket Fare—No Change of Cars—All Cars Run Through.

From 1 o'clock to 11 o'clock p. m. of each week day and all day on Sundays, the Huron Street and Depot Line runs through to the asylum.

There is no line in the city which presents such a varied and attractive ride. Transfers from all lines are good on this line until further notice.

Those who have not been to the asylum do not know what is there. It is worth a ride 100 miles to see the grounds alone. Talk of parks—one million and a half of dollars expended by the state. The grounds are beautiful.

GAS AND OIL.

The Ohio Company to Drill New Territory.

St. Marys, O., July 25.—(Special)—The Ohio Oil company will complete an important test well on the J. G. Dickman farm, in section 19, seven miles southwest of this city, in a few days. The well is located considerable of a distance away from any producing wells, and it is unable to conjecture what the result will be.

The Ohio Oil company completed No. 4 on the Snethkamp, southeast of here Friday and is showing for a good well. The well was to be shot the same afternoon, and the first charge of 20 quarts had been safely let into the hole, when the second shell was lowered. At about 100 feet from the top, the charge went off, and produced a terrific explosion, which shook the earth for miles around. The force of the terrific charge cut the casing in two, and hurled it 20 feet above the derrick. Dave Robinson, who shot it, stated that this was the first accident that ever happened to him in the field.

Mr. John Flaherty, a well-known pumper, was married to Miss Mollie Smith, Wednesday.

LOVE'S PINIONS.

To-night I bury Love, who stole into my life last spring;
The day I lost my faith in you he came on broken wing;
"Ah, nevermore," he sobbed, "to soar with her above the sky!
A crippled god * * * all lovers true will mock me halting by!"
Straightway I bound his shattered plume—it was a cruel wound;
With pain and sorrow stricken sore, he sank to earth and swooned.

Like a banished cherub roamed he on, still trailing in the dust
Wings that had brushed the gates of heaven on love's impassioned gust;
But—oh, the saddest thing of all!—he never spake of you,
Though oft I saw a shadow steal across his eyes of blue;
His little mouth would quiver as I kissed his golden head,
And a broken voice oft murmured low: "I would that I were dead!"

And so I bury Love to-night; his brow is still and cold;
Yet if I dared that marble form above my heart to hold,
I do believe the breath of life would thrill in every limb—
But then, you know, he suffered so, oblivion's best for him.
Unfalteringly I dig a grave by Lethe's dreary shore * * *
Young Love on pinions bathed in light shall soar, ah, nevermore!

—Charles C. Loomis in the Times-Democrat.

THE MAID WAS A MAN.

The two young married ladies seem literally buried in flowers. They are alone in a roomy landau filled with bouquets just like a big flower basket. On the front seat two hampers are full of violets from Nice, and on the bearskin which covers their knees a confused mass of roses, sensitive plant, wallflowers, daisies, tuberoses and orange blossoms, tied with silk favors, seems almost to crush their fragile forms, only allowing the shoulders and arms and a little of the waists—one of which is blue and the other lilac—to appear above this dazzling and beautifully scented rest.

The coachman's whip is twined with anemones, the harness is decked with charlocks, the spokes of the wheels are worked out in mignonette, and in the place of lamps two enormous bouquets give the appearance of two extraordinary eyes belonging to some flower-covered and moving monster.

The landau bowls smoothly along the way Antibes street, proceeded, followed and surrounded by a crowd of other carriages, similarly decorated, crowded with ladies half hidden under a sea of violets. It is "Battle of the Flowers" day at the Cannes carnival.

The procession reaches the Boulevard de la Fonciere, where the battle takes place. Along the whole length of this fine avenue a double row of gayly decorated carriages goes and comes like an endless colored ribbon. From one to the other they throw flowers, which pass through the air like a shower of bullets, striking many a fair face, then glancing off fall into the dust, where they are picked up by an army of street arabs.

A dense crowd packed on the sidewalks and kept there by mounted policemen, who pass by roughly and drive back the too eager pedestrians, by no means allowing the shabby or poorer people to mingle with the wealthy crowd, looks on noisy but good-natured.

In the carriages people call each other by name, exchange bows, and subject each other to a hot fire of roses. A carful of pretty women, all clothed in brilliant scarlet, attracts and delights the eye. One gentleman, who looks like a portrait of Henry IV., full of energetic fun, throws about an enormous bouquet fastened to him by a strong rubber cord. To avoid an expected blow from it the ladies close their eyes and the men duck their heads, but the beautiful projectile, quick and well under control, simply makes a graceful curve and comes back to its owner, who very soon hurls it at some new face.

The two young ladies in the landau do their best to exhaust their arsenal and in turn receive a fresh heap of bouquets; then, after an hour of the battle a little tired, they order the coachman to drive along the Gulf of Juan road, which winds along the shore.

The sun is disappearing behind l'Esterel and makes the jagged side view of the spreading mountain stand out black on a background of fire. The sea spreads blue and calm to the far-off horizon, where it mingles with the sky, and the fleet anchored in the middle of the bay has the appearance of a collection of huge sea monsters motionless on the water.

The young ladies stretched out on the heavy fur look on at it in lazy contentment. At last one breaks the silence.

"There are some evenings when everything seems good. Is it not so, Margot?"

The other answers:

"Yes, it is very nice, but there is always something wanting."

"What is it? I feel completely happy and don't seem to want anything."

"Ah, but you don't think. No matter how comfortable our bodies we always want something more for—the heart."

And the other, smiling:

"A little love?"

"Yes."

They relapsed into silence. Then the one called Marguerite murmured: "Life without it seems to me unbearable. I must be loved by some one or something, if it is only a faithful doggie. But we are all like this; what do you think, Simone?"

"Not quite that, dear. I would sooner not be loved at all than by—well, it is of no consequence who. Do you think it would be pleasant to me to be loved, for example, by—by" ——. She tried to find some one by looking across the open landscape, and her eyes, after scanning it, fell on the two brass buttons which shone on the back of her coachman; then she went on with a laugh, "by my coachman?" Marguerite smiled slightly and said in a low voice:

"I assure you it is very funny to have one of your servants fall in love with you. They make such faces that it almost kills one with laughter. Naturally, one is stricter than usual when they become too forward; then one discharges them at any moment on the first excuse handy, because it makes you look so ridiculous should any one notice it."

Simone listened without turning her head, then she said: "No, most certainly my footman's heart isn't enough for me."

"Tell me, then, how do you find out when they are in love with you?"

"I notice it in the same way I do with other men, they simply become stupid. To me the others don't seem at all silly when they love me."

"Idiots, my dear, incapable of even answering properly or paying attention to what is going on."

"But you, what effect does it have on you when a servant falls in love with you? Does it disturb you? Are you flattered?"

"Disturb? No. Flattered? Yes, a little. One is always a little flattered by a man's love, no matter who he is. Oh! we hear Margot! Nevertheless it is so dear. Listen, I am going to tell you about a funny thing which happened to me. You will see what a curious and confused sensation comes to us on certain occasions."

Four years ago last autumn I found myself without a maid. I had tried about six, one after the other, all of whom were useless, and I had almost given up hope of finding one, when I chanced to see in the paper among the small advertisements of those seeking places that of a young girl, who stated that she could sew, embroider, and dress the hair, and that she could furnish the best of references. Moreover, she spoke English.

I wrote to the address given, and the next day she called. She was of a fair height, thin, rather pale, with a very bashful appearance. She had beautiful black eyes, a perfect complexion, and pleased me at once. I asked her for her references. She handed me one in English, for she had just left, so she said, Lady Rymwells, where she had been for ten years.

The letter stated that the young girl had left of her own accord to return to France, and that during the whole of her long service nothing more could be found against her than a slightly French tendency to flirt.

The prudish wording of this English expression made me smile and I engaged her the same day. Her name was Rose.

At the end of a month I thought her perfection.

She was a perfect find, a jewel, a wonder. She knew how to dress hair with perfect and varied taste; she could arrange the lace on a hat as well as the best of hat trimmers, and she could make dresses.

I was astounded at her skill. Never before had I been waited on so perfectly.

She dressed me quickly, with a wonderful delicacy of touch. I never felt her fingers on my skin, and nothing annoys me so much as the touch of a maid's hand. I soon fell into very lazy ways, it was so pleasant to be dressed by her, from head to foot and from my gloves to my underclothing, by this tall, bashful girl, always blushing, and who never spoke. I even made her give me massage after I had my bath, while I dozed on my lounge. Indeed, I looked on her more in the light of a friend in poor circumstances rather than an ordinary servant.

But one morning my doorkeeper, with considerable show of mystery, asked if he could speak to me. I was surprised, but told him to come in. He was a very careful man, an old soldier, one of my husband's old orderlies.

He seemed upset by what he had got to say. At last, half stammering, he said:

"Madam, the police sergeant of this district is down stairs."

I asked quickly: "What does he want?"

"He wants to make a strict search through the house."

As it is the police, it is useless to object, but I abominate it just the same. I do not look on it as a nice kind of thing, and I answer as much in irritation as from a sense of outrage:

"Why this strict search? What is its object? It will lead to nothing."

The doorkeeper answered: "He declares that there is a criminal in hiding here."

This time I was afraid, and told him to present the police sergeant to me, so that he could explain matters himself. He was a well-mannered enough man, decorated with the Legion d'Honneur. He excused himself, apologized, but persisted in his statement that I had a convict among my servants.

I was disgusted, and I answered that I would vouch for every servant in the house and I went over their names.

"The doorkeeper, Peter Courtin, old soldier?"

"He isn't the man."

"The coachman, Francis Pingan, a countryman from Champagne, son of one of my father's farmers?"

"No, not him."

"A groom, also from Champagne, and also the son of a countryman I know? There is no one else except the footman you have just seen."

"He isn't the man."

"Then, sir, you must acknowledge that you have made a mistake."

"Pardon, madam, I am perfectly certain I have not made a mistake. As it concerns a well-known criminal, will you have the kindness to call all your household before us?"

I hesitated at first, then I gave in, and made all my servants come up, both men and women.

The police sergeant took them all in at a glance, and then said:

"They are not all here."

"Pardon, sir, there is no one else but my maid, a young girl whom you surely cannot take for a convict."

He said:

"Can I see her, too?"

"Certainly."

I rang the bell for Rose, who soon appeared. Scarcely had she came in when the sergeant made a sign and two men whom I had not noticed hidden behind the door, threw themselves on her, seized her hands, and tied them with cords.

I gave a cry of fright and wished to spring forward to protect her, but the sergeant stopped me.

"This girl, madam, is a man known as John Nicolas Lacapet, condemned to death in 1879 for an aggravated case of murder—the murder of a woman he had loved. His punishment was later commuted to imprisonment for life. He escaped four months ago and we have been looking for him ever since."

I was dumbfounded, completely upset. I wouldn't believe it. The sergeant answered with a smile:

"I can only give you one proof. His right arm is tatooed."

The sleeve was pulled up. It was true. The policeman, with somewhat bad taste, added:

"Do you still dispute with us for him?"

And then they walked off with my maid.

Well, will you believe it that the feeling which was dominant in me was not one of anger of having been fooled in this manner, deceived and made so ridiculous; nor was it one of shame of having been dressed and undressed, handled and touched by this man, but a deep sense of humiliation—the humiliation of a woman? Do you understand? Not very clearly. Well, consider. He had been condemned to death for the murder of a woman, this man—and I thought of one who had been murdered and that—well, it humiliated me. That's all. Do you understand now?

Margot did not answer, she looked straight in front of her, one eye directed in a peculiar manner on the shining buttons of the coachman's livery, and she smiled that sphinx-like smile that women so often affect.—Guy De Maupassant.
